COALITION STANDS FOR NON-PARTISAN TARIFF COMMISSION

Administration Of Problems Duty Of Proposed Body

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—After defeating President Hoover on the flexible tariff and effecting a compromise on tariff valuations, the Democratic-Insurgent coalition in the senate today battled for creation of a non-partisan tariff commission for the administration of all tariff problems.

The coalition held out for a non-partisan commission, which would be composed of economic, industrial and agricultural experts who would settle each tariff controversy on its economic merits. The Republican leadership assailed this plan, and contended for continuation of the present bipartisan commission of three Republicans and three Democrats.

A decision on this issue will about conclude the battle over administrative provisions in the new bill. Thus far, the Republican organization has run a bad second. In the flexible tariff row, the administration was defeated and the president was stripped of all emergency powers over rates. In the valuation contest, Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, insurgent leader, effected a compromise by which both sides gained their points.

The valuation case was settled by adoption of the house provision, directing the president to use any governmental agency in determining the extent to which values in the United States may properly be used as a basis for assessment of customs duties.

RESUME PROBE OF BRIBERY CHARGES

CANTON, O., Oct. 4.—Additional witnesses were summoned before the Stark County grand jury today as investigation was resumed into the letting of contracts for the new Molly Stark tuberculosis sanitarium.

Indicating that new developments in the probe had caused him to change his mind, Prosecutor Henry W. Harter, Jr., abandoned a previously announced plan to recess the grand jury until next week.

The investigation here resulted from indictments made in both Cuyahoga and Stark Counties against Charles A. Fromm, president of the Stark County board of commissioners, on charges of soliciting a bribe in connection with awarding the hospital contracts. Fromm is scheduled for trial in Cleveland October 23.

MAC DONALD PARTY ARRIVES IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—A new era in Anglo-American relations marked by the reduction of navies to insure world peace, was believed imminent today when Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald, head of the British Labor government arrived here enroute for Washington to confer with President Hoover.

The British prime minister will reach Washington late this afternoon to discuss Anglo-American questions, but, especially, plans for five-power naval limitations conference in January.

EX-SECRETARY FALL TAKEN ILL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—On the eve of his trial here for "accepting a $100,000 bribe," Ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall has been taken ill.

The former cabinet officer, and central figure in the oil scandals, was said today to have passed "a fairly comfortable night." His temperature was lower this morning.

Fall is being attended by a physician who accompanied him from New Mexico and by his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Chase.

TWO KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

MANFIELD, O., Oct. 4.—Two Crawford County men were instantly killed last night when they were struck by a passenger train at a crossing east of here.

The dead are Richard Hosterman, 24, and Albert Christner, 20. Hosterman resided about six miles west of Bucyrus, and Christner lived in the Crawford County seat. Both men worked here. They are believed to have been blinded by driving rain.

FIND HEADLESS BODY

AUTHORITIES SEEK TO IDENTIFY TRAIN VICTIM FOUND HERE

Body Discovered Early Friday By Track Workers East Of Jamestown Pike Pennsy Crossing; Partially Identify Remains

The decapitated body of a well dressed white man about 45 years old was found along the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, midway between the Jamestown crossing and the overhead bridge, two miles east of Xenia, at 6 a. m. Friday by members of a section crew.

No marks of identification were found on the body and authorities are puzzled by the absence of papers or anything in the man's clothes that would serve as a clew through which his identity could be established.

Patrolman Fred Jones, who viewed the body at the R. M. Neel undertaking parlors, where it was removed, said that he closely resembled a man who gave his name as Omer Whetstone, 44, 111 Montana Ave., Dayton, who was locked up at Police Headquarters part of Wednesday night on a charge of loitering and was released Thursday morning.

Members of the section gang who found the body lying along the eastbound track reported the discovery to the main office here and subsequently an examination was made by Dr. F. M. Chambliss, county coroner, and Dr. W. A. Galoway, Pennsylvania railway surgeon.

It is the coroner's opinion the man was struck by a train late Thursday night as death had taken place from six to ten hours previously. The severed head was found fifty feet away from the body.

The circumstances, according to Coroner Chambliss, point to suicide.

An attempt to identify the body was expected to be made Friday afternoon by Fred O. Lurance, Pennsylvania Railroad detective, who arrested the man whom Pat-

AMNESIA VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED; GIRL WORKED AS ARTIST

Wanted To Disappear Friends Claim; Father Called

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4.—A girl artist who had often wished she would "wake up somewhere unknown" is the amnesia victim here whom police believe today they have identified as Miss Alice Walsh, 21, of Madison, Wis., and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin art and architecture college.

William Walsh, president of the Dane County Motor Co., who is the father of Alice, was reported enroute to Cleveland today to positively identify the mysterious amnesia victim here and to take care of her.

The girl arrived in Cleveland Wednesday from Chicago, seeking the aid of local authorities in establishing her identity. She talked with Mrs. Walsh in Madison over long distance telephone late yesterday. Although she was very vague about her past and did not seem to recognize Mrs. Walsh's voice, the girl was identified by the mother as her daughter. Mrs. Walsh told police authorities that her daughter had been working as a commercial artist in a Madison department store. She failed to arrive.

Friends of Alice at Madison informed local authorities that Alice had often expressed a desire to disappear and reappear in a distant city as an unknown person. Despite police assurance that her name is Alice, the girl still appeared in a dazed, uncertain state today and not at all positive that her identity has been established.

CORONER REPORTS VICTIM MURDERED

URBANA, O., Oct. 4.—That Homer Lucas, whose body was found in a cistern in Mechanicsburg, this county, September 23, was murdered, is the statement which is contained in the report of Coroner Irving Armpriester, which he completed today.

Since the finding of Lucas' body, an extensive investigation has been carried on by county authorities. As yet no direct charge of murder has been placed against the father, brother and step-mother of the dead man, all of whom are being held in the county jail.

JEANNE EAGLES DIES SUDDENLY

JEANNE EAGLES

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Broadway—the street that knows perhaps better than any other the heights of gaiety and depths of sorrow—was plunged into sadness today, it mourned the loss of one of its most popular and glittering figures, Jeanne Eagles.

The brilliant actress, who leaped into international fame through her creation of the role of Sadie Thompson in Somerset Maugham's record-run play "Rain," died suddenly in a private hospital last night while awaiting treatment for a nervous ailment.

There was some mystery as to the cause. The hospital physician who first reported the death could give no reason. Later on, it was diagnosed as due to "alcoholic psychosis."

DANCER TESTIFIES AGAINST PANTAGES ON ATTACK CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, today was to take the witness stand and tell of the alleged attack on her by Alexander Pantages, wealthy theatrical promoter.

Meanwhile Harry E. Hollum, manager of one of the Pantages' showhouses, was rounding out a twenty-four hour sentence in the county jail for contempt of court imposed yesterday by Judge Chas. Fricke for talking to one of the Pantages jurors.

Mrs. Irene Pringle, mother of the girl who accuses Pantages, the state's first witness, described the condition of her daughter's body after the alleged attack, telling of the presence of "bruises and bites."

The mother identified a flaming red frock, a partly torn silk undergarment, a pair of silk hose and red dancing pumps as the clothes worn by her daughter when she left home the morning of her visit to Pantages' greater office.

All other witnesses including her daughter were sent from the courtroom before she began her story. The prosecution's examination of Mrs. Pringle was short. Defense

Attorney Jerry Geisler then launched his cross-examination in detail, keeping the high school teacher on the stand for the remainder of the afternoon.

Geisler's questioning failed to gain much ground for the defense in its announced plan to prove the girl and others had "framed" Pantages.

The mother denied that she had planned to bring civil suit against Pantages. She stated that all she wanted was "justice for Eunice!"

INVESTIGATION OF LOBBIES IS TAKING ON CONCRETE FORM

Senator Norris To Head Probe Is Indication

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The senate's lobby investigation was taking on concrete form today as demands that many organizations be put under the spotlight poured into the capitol.

Members of the senate judiciary committee, from the membership of which a sub-committee will be named to carry out the lobby probe, have taken unofficial cognizance of the demands, and are considering how far the investigation is to go.

Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee, is slated to head the new body. The chairmanship was offered to Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas, but he declined, pleading other pressing work. Senators Gillett (R) of Massachusetts; Blaine (R) of Wisconsin; and Walsh (D) of Montana, probably will be the three senators who, with Norris and Caraway will comprise the committee.

Already the investigators have a large program ahead. Caraway has indicated he favored acceding to the request of the American Legion, which adopted a resolution demanding inquiry of ten peace organizations at its convention last Wednesday.

"I recollect we asked those boys to perform a far from agreeable task some time ago," Caraway said when notified of the legion request. "If they want any organization investigated, I think we should do it."

WEATHER OBSERVER FOR GREENE COUNTY NAMED HERE FRIDAY

Ernest Harner Of Fish Hatchery To Be Observer

Ernest Harner, county game warden and superintendent of the state fish hatchery, Springfield Pike, was appointed official U. S. weather observer for Xenia Friday by W. H. Alexander, Columbus, chief of the U. S. weather service in Ohio.

The action discontinues an observatory station at the O. S. and S. O. Home, which has not been in operation for a year, and the instruments were removed immediately to the hatchery location. The station at the Home had been in operation for eight or ten years until about a year ago.

Difficulty in obtaining an observer to use the instruments there and furnish the daily reports required by the service, led to its falling into disuse and Mr. Alexander came to Xenia Friday in an attempt to restore the station to service under a competent observer. Location of the station at the fish hatchery will give the hatchery superintendent an opportunity to check weather conditions which is expected to work to the advantage of the hatchery operation as well as the interests of the state weather service.

Reports from all Ohio weather bureaus are made directly to Mr. Alexander at Columbus daily, a check being kept on maximum and minimum temperatures, daily range in temperature, precipitation, cloudy conditions and other phenomena. Re-establishment of the station will make accurate weather information available to Xenians and assure authentic reports on weather conditions locally.

PRIEST PROVES HERO OF PRISON RIOT; RISKS LIFE TO END FIGHT

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 4.—Father Patrick O'Neil of the Holy Cross Abbey here, risked his life twice today to place charges of dynamite in Cell House No. 3 of the state penitentiary where rioting prisoners had barricaded themselves in an all-night bloody battle.

As great sheets of flame from the cell house pierced the early morning darkness Father O'Neil advanced under the precarious protection of an enfilading barrage of machine gun and rifle fire from the militiamen.

Father O'Neil made a hard run in his first attempt, placing a heavy charge of dynamite at the corner of the cell house. This charge failed to explode because of a defect in the fuse.

Against the entreaties of officers, the priest insisted upon placing another charge.

"I deplore seeing men killed," Father O'Neil said, "but I can't stand this savage butchery on the part of these convicts."

Another dynamite charge was prepared and the priest again faced death from the constant fire of the maddened prisoners.

The second charge exploded but failed to tear away much of the cell house.

It was then that the officers decided to send for a tank and some French 75's. Before arrival of these immense war weapons the leaders of the riot killed themselves and officers gained control of the situation.

ATHENS MESSENGER PUBLISHER DIES OF PARALYSIS FRIDAY

Fred Bush Succumbs Following Sudden Attack

ATHENS, O., Oct. 4.—Fred W. Bush, publisher of the Athens Messenger and prominent in newspaper circles throughout the country, died at his home here today from the effects of a stroke of paralysis which he suffered at his desk Tuesday.

Bush was 65 years of age and he had been in good health until he suffered the stroke. He died without regaining consciousness. Members of his family were at his bedside when death wrote the final chapter to his successful career.

He was graduated from Ohio University here and at the time of his death was a member of the board of trustees at the educational institution.

As publisher of the Messenger for thirty-five years, he became well known in Ohio journalistic circles. He was at one time president of the Spectator List of Ohio Dailies and also of the Associated Ohio Dailies.

At the time of his death, he was active in both organizations and he had also served on the board of directors of the American Newspaper Association.

Before entering the newspaper field, Bush taught school. He was prominent in civic affairs here and was a former president of the local chamber of commerce.

Burial services are to be held Sunday afternoon from his home. Surviving him are his widow, a son, Gordon, of New York City, a daughter, Mrs. Julian M. Snyder of Cambridge, Mass., and a brother J. E. Bush, of Dresden, O.

TICKET SCALPERS HAD BEST BEWARE

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—A corps of thirty special detectives from the internal revenue department will patrol the "loop" district here to see that the government gets its legal due on all world's series tickets sold, it was announced today.

Scalpers who neglect to keep a proper record of their sales are subject to a fine of $100 and costs, it was announced by Mrs. Myrtle Blackledge, collector.

The investigators will take up their duties now and continue until the series is completed.

MORTALITY HURT

DAYTON, O., Oct. 4.—Ethel Swatford, 24, is dying in a local hospital today from injuries which she received last night when the automobile which was being driven by her escort, Forest Phillips, turned over on a traction crossing.

PRISON OUTBREAK ENDS WHEN LEADER COMMITS SUICIDE

Cell House Turned In Shambles In Bloody Fight

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 4.—Thirteen men—seven guards and six convicts—were killed here in a sixteen-hour bloody riot at the state penitentiary, according to definite check at 7:30 this morning by officials in the warden's office.

Eleven others were wounded in the battle which continued throughout the night between hundreds of militiamen, guards, peace officers and the enraged rioting prisoners who had barricaded themselves in a cell house demanding their freedom.

The property damage is estimated at $500,000.

The chapel, dining room, and two cell houses are in shambles from fire.

Nearly 1,000 prisoners are herded in the prison yards and it will be necessary to house them in tents indefinitely as a result of destruction of the cell houses.

The bloodiest battle in the history of Colorado penal institution ended shortly before 6 o'clock this morning.

SEE GUARDS SLAIN

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 3.—Two of the men who were slaughtered in the Colorado State Penitentiary mutiny here—John Elles and Abe Wiggins—were placed so near a window of cell house No. 3 that their actual execution was witnessed by persons outside. Wiggins was seen to slump to the floor as the convicts released a barrage of bullets.

Wiggins was shot three times through the head and once through the body—and was then hurled while still alive from a window.

Wiggins lay in the cell house more than an hour. His body was then carried out by John Shea, a guard, who at the same time was sent out by the militiamen to deliver the final ultimatum, that, unless granted freedom by 10 o'clock Thursday night, all the hostages would be slain.

morning when Danny Daniels, ring leader of the outbreak, committed suicide by shooting himself.

Jimmy Pardue co-conspirator with Daniels, is believed to be dead also but his body was not recovered by the first exploration party to enter cell house No. 3.

Officers had complete control of the situation at 6 o'clock and had started investigations to determine the exact death list and property damage, the latter being estimated at more than $500,000.

Daniels took his own life after he had led an all-night battle against hundreds of militiamen prison guards and peace officers who fired thousands of machine gun and rifle shots, laid dynamite charges and barges of tear gas in an effort to dislodge the rebellious prisoners from cell house No. 3.

The end of the bloody slaughter came as officers had called a temporary halt in the bombardment of the barricaded prisoners to await the arrival here of an armed tank from Denver and a supply of French 75's with which they planned to blow the cell house to bits.

In addition to Daniels, it was said by the first officers to enter the cell house that three other ringleaders of the insurrectionists had also apparently committed suicide by shooting themselves when their several demands for opportunity to parley for peace with the officers were refused.

The convicts found dead are:

POLICEMAN HELD ON BOND FOR SLAYING

CANTON, O., Oct. 4.—Although under $1,000 bond on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal wounding of 16-year-old George Stipanovich last September 24, Policeman E. C. Mansfield was still patrolling his "beat" today.

Mansfield was arrested late yesterday on an affidavit filed by Samuel Stipanovich, father of the dead youth. He pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the grand jury.

Young Stipanovich was killed with a bullet fired by Mansfield while the latter and another policeman were chasing a gang of youths who were said to have been frightening motorists.

BUSINESS MAN DIES

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—Funeral arrangements are being made here today for Horace Willoughby, 53, president and general manager of the Columbus office of the Crane Company, a national corporation, following his death late last night.

His death was said to have been caused by heart trouble.

CHAPTER XLVI

Chatty had some encouragement her effort to keep her promise and reorganize her nature; to make herself over from a born talking machine into a real business woman, who doesn't talk any more than she expects to be talked out.

Her mother noticed the difference almost at once.

"I declare, Chatty," she began, "ter Chatty had been at work a week or so, 'I don't know what's over you! You used to come and tell me everything about an office, and now you never say a thing!"

"I'm trying not to gossip," explained Chatty. "I don't mean to be uncommunicative, mother, dear, but if I talk to you about office gossip I'm apt to talk elsewhere, and I said I wouldn't."

"Well, that's fine! I didn't know that was at the bottom of it!" Her mother sighed in relief. "I always did you you talked too much."

Chatty was up in arms on the instant. It's one thing to tell yourself that you must keep a promise, and quite another to be blamed for talking too much by your mother!

"I never did!" Chatty assured her. "That was just your imagination. But things happened in the office which made it seem as if I did. I am back on a promise that I won't even give anyone reason to think I talk—even if I never really did."

It was a pretty lame defense, but the best Chatty could think of at the moment.

Her mother smiled wisely and did nothing, being a wise mother. Billie and Winnie both noted that Chatty was not living up to her nickname. Billie said little about it, but a pat on the arm, a wise smile, a friendly gesture, meant much to Billie. Chatty still felt uncomfortable when she remembered that she knew things about George which Billie didn't know; that she talked about Billie, and Billie didn't know it.

She felt uncomfortable, always, when keeping anything to herself, but she stuck to her plan to be silent, even if it was hard.

Winnie laughed at her. "I declare, you are getting so oyster-mouthed it's hard to get a 'yes' or a 'no' out of you. But maybe you'll answer this: If I ask you to come tonight to meet Bryant and Jim, will you come?"

Chatty smiled, in spite of herself. He dullest ache in her heart needed easing. Bryant—well, Bryant was sweet, even if he was dangerous, and long repression of talk had made Chatty dull.

"Yes, I'll come!" she answered. "It was a happy party. Pudd was called on to bring alcohol. Bryant brought it with him. The apartment was provided with plenty of oranges, lemons, ginger ale, seltzer, and the raw taste of the 'cooked' spirits he disguised in as many ways as possible. As usual, there was nothing to eat."

And as usual, there was a lot of very frank necking. Jim and Winnie kissed as unconsciously of observation as if alone. Bryant was a overing bee, with Chatty's lips or cheek or neck as the flower.

It was late in the evening before Bryant made the suggestion for which Chatty had been hoping. Let's all take a ride and cool off!"

"Eats?" suggested Winnie. "Why eat? You drink to kill care, then you eat to kill the booze, and then you go to sleep to forget the rest! Silly!" answered Bryant, and they all laughed as if he had said something really funny!

Jim had his own car—which Chatty knew in advance, otherwise he wouldn't have wanted to ride—so she was alone with Bryant. It was some time since she had ridden with him, and to her amazement, and a little to her consternation, she found herself hardly able to wait until he got to a dark road, and stopped the car. For Chatty knew that inside she was hoping for a recurrence of the miracle, in which Bryant, kissing her, became David—David, who had not kissed for months. They had to wait a moment for a battered car to pass. It went swiftly by, its headlights blinding on her face.

The miracle refused to happen. When Bryant hugged her to him and pressed his lips hotly to hers, it was only Bryant—Bryant, too well made up, too carefully groomed, too odorous of perfume to seem like David.

Chatty sighed, after half an hour. It wouldn't work. She couldn't kiss vicariously by planning it, evidently.

"I—I guess we better go home!" she said at last, wearily.

"Well, if you say so—but before we do, tell me the latest scandal!" suggested Bryant. "I haven't heard any dirt about any one for days!"

"I don't know any!" answered Chatty.

"You said it! You sure have changed, sweetness! And while you haven't so much to say, I don't know but what that's nicer!"

Chatty smiled, then frowned, as he added: "Leaves your mouth freer for kisses!"

But in spite of that last remark, Chatty was pleased with her evening. She had been careful what she drank, she had not talked, and Bryant had praised her for failure to gossip.

That night, almost asleep, a great thought flashed across her mind.

"If I've really stopped gossiping, why—why—why the things about me that made David give me up—are gone! Oh, if he knew it, would he take me back?"

She lay awake for a delicious hour, pondering it, hoping for it, planning to make it come true.

At ten minutes of three the next day, Chatty got excused from the office for an hour. It was the least busy part of the day, and Lola was willing to relieve her at the switchboard. She had stayed in, and gone without lunch, in order to get the hour, just before the bank closed for the day.

At five minutes of three she knocked on David's door in the Midas bank.

At four minutes of three she sat in a chair before his desk, her heart beating madly, her face smiling, but a little wistful, as she looked at the man who occupied her thoughts.

"This is an unexpected pleasure," began David. "More advice, Miss Chatterton?"

Chatty sat silent for a moment, gathering her courage. Then she asked:

"Would it hurt you very much to call me Chatty, like you did—once?"

David reddened. He did not expect anything so direct. But he recovered himself immediately.

"Why, no Chatty, it wouldn't hurt me. But this is a business office. In it I transact business. I don't call clients by their first names."

"But it's three o'clock, and the bank is closed," declared Chatty, triumphantly. "Please, Dave."

"All right—Chatty!" David smiled at her. "Now what can I do for you?"

"Listen to me a minute!" she answered. Then she told him all that she had done. How she had taken his advice and gone to Mr. Van Nuy's—how she had suddenly corrected herself when the old habit reasserted itself and she had begun to exaggerate; how she had received her job back, the promises really!" she urged. "I have heard several things I really think people ought to know! I feel as if I were not doing my duty, not telling them! But I haven't told them—I promised I wouldn't and I haven't! Truly, truly, I have reformed—"

Chatty had no idea of the pretty picture she made, her piquant face alight with eager earnestness, her sweet mouth trembling a little with emotion, her eyes big with a love she didn't know she showed so plainly.

But David knew how pretty she was.

"Well, I think you are one enormously attractive girl!" he burst out, at last. "You don't know how glad I am that you are trying. But—but—"

"But what?"

"Will it last?" David's voice was dry. His was the attitude of the burnt child which dreads the fire.

"You don't believe in me?"

TEACHERS ATTEND
OPENING MEETING

Xenia Township teachers held their first meeting of the year at the township office last Friday afternoon, with Miss Ray presiding, as president.

Interesting reports were given on the "Aims and the Standards of Achievement in Reading," by Miss Matthews, Mr. Cavendar, Mrs. Paye Murry, Mrs. Thelma Spahr, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hampton.

This was followed by brief reports of the progress made in the different schools during the month and by a general discussion of various methods and devices used in the teaching of reading.

LIVESTOCK DAY

The tenth hour of the tenth day of the tenth month is the time for the fall Livestock Day at the Ohio Experiment Station, at Wooster as announced by Paul Gerlaugh, chief in animal industry.

At this time 100 head of yearling steers will make a progress report of their summer's work. While the test on the cattle will not close until November the results of one hundred and twelve days in the feed lot will be available on October 10.

Thirty-five head of Shorthorns are obtaining additional information on dry lot feeding as compared with feeding on bluegrass pasture. A year ago the cattle that were fed on pasture made more economical gains than the cattle fed in the barn. This year a third lot has an opportunity to run in an outside lot where no grass is available to see whether the advantage of being outside is a factor in making gains.

Four lots of yearling steers, are comparing linseed meal and cottonseed meal at the rates of one and two pounds per steer daily. If it is possible to substitute a pound of shelled corn for one pound of protein concentrate in the ration a material saving in feed cost will result to the feeder.

Market values on cattle are more difficult to understand during the fall season than at any other time of year. Representatives from Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and Buffalo, markets will be on hand Livestock Day to place values on the various lots of cattle, and to explain conditions on the three markets at that time.

Thirty-five lots of pigs will show results of various tests which have been conducted by W. L.

GIRLS WIN TRIP

Two Lorain County girls will have a free trip to Chicago this winter as a result of their work in 4-H clothing clubs during the past season. If they are fortunate in Chicago, they may even go to Paris in 1930 as the guests of a Chicago mail order concern.

The girls are Agnes Bonga and Rosalin Adams, both of La Grange, members of a 4-H clothing club led by Mrs. S. M. Heath of the same community. The two girls formed a clothing demonstration team which represented the county at the Ohio State Fair. They have been awarded the state championship in clothing demonstration work among the counties which were qualified according to the rules laid down by the concern awarding the Chicago trip.

The visit to Chicago will be for the purpose of attending the Na-

Members of the committee have asked four other workers from other churches to assist them in leading the study groups. Miss Quinn said that the class work would soon begin. The classes will be held for six weeks and the same course of Bible truth will be studied in the various groups.

During the rest of the afternoon a program of vocal and instrumental numbers by Mrs. Foy Coffelt, Miss Frances Earl, Mrs. Louis Hammer, Misses Lois and Marjorie Street and Fern Jack was enjoyed.

The hostesses from local churches served dainty refreshments at the close.

Each member gave a short reading from the study-book, "Jerusalem to Jerusalem." Short talks by several members followed.

The hostess served a dainty refreshment course at the close of the meeting and a social time was enjoyed. She was assisted by Mrs. Rose Reese.

The Clara Allen Auxiliary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Roy Spahr, 32 E. Third St., Monday evening. A large attendance is desired and members will please remember dues.

Invitations have been issued to members of the local chapter of the Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity to attend the first of the fall subscription dances being sponsored by Ohio Lambda Chapter at Springfield, Friday evening from 9 to 12 o'clock in the ballroom of the Hotel Shawnee. Music will be furnished by George Bower's Orchestra. Guests from Dayton, Columbus, Urbana and Xenia are expected to be in attendance.

Mrs. Louise Stunich, W. Main St., who has been ill at her home for some time is improved.

Miss Anna Mae Patterson, Home Ave., has returned home after spending the past week in Dayton as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kershner.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Owens, Mr. Michael Kearney and Mr. Robert Tuhey, this city attended the funeral services of Mr. Thomas Hannon, former Xenian, Friday, who passed away at his home in Cleveland Tuesday.

Miss Mary Hornick, who has been ill for some time at the home of Mrs. Leigh Baughn, shows some improvement.

Soft, wavy hair!

The modern sculptured hobs do wonders to bring out your personality. But like other present-day modes of arranging the hair, they call attention to it. That's why it's so important nowadays to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant. The easiest and quickest way to give new lustre and color to hair, which has begun to look dull and lifeless, is with Danderine. And it makes the hair softer, easier to arrange; holds it in place.

Here's all you do. Each time you use your brush just put a little Danderine on it. It removes the oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color; gives it more gloss than brilliantine. Waves "set" with it stay in longer. Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It stops falling hair. A small bottle is enough to show its merit. Start on it tonight.

SON ATTEMPTS TO SACRIFICE FOR DAD

IRONTON, O., Oct. 4.—The trial of Sherman Cole, 42, and his son, Robert, 19, for the murder of Jacob Woolum, 68, went forward in common pleas court here today despite a dramatic attempt to stop it yesterday.

The son asked permission to plead guilty to a charge of manslaughter so that his father might go free.

Father is needed at home," the boy pleaded, "to look after three infants and three other children."

Though both the father and son deny any knowledge of the killing of Woolum, he offered to sacrifice himself before the tribunal of justice.

THREE TENANTS ARE SEEKING SITES FOR STORE LOCATIONS

New locations are being sought for the stores affected by the lease of the Clara Allen building on S. Detroit St. to the S. S. Kresge Co., Detroit, Mich., for a period of thirty years.

The "Smoke House," a cigar store which has been operated by William Fletcher at its present location for the last four years, has no lease, while the lease of the L. A. Wagner jewelry store expires January 1, 1930 and that of the Arrow Shoe Co., January 1, 1931.

The Kresge Co. lease becomes effective January 1, 1931 or sooner if the firm receives written notice that the three-story brick building has been vacated by its present tenants.

The room in which the "Smoke House" is now located has been occupied as a cigar store for nearly fifty years. L. A. Wagner has con-

COUNTY FAIR MADE $3,750 IN PROFITS

The 1929 Greene County Fair produced a net profit of $3,750 after all expenses had been paid, according to an estimate made by Brant U. Bell, treasurer of the fair board, who declared the exposition was the most successful in years from a financial standpoint.

Including the annual allowance received from the county and state, the fair board was able to pay off $3,500 of its indebtedness reducing the debt to $7,000. A debt of $1,500 on the new grandstand and $5,500 on the grounds remains to be paid.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE KING CROWNED — So then, after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.—Mark 16:19.

CHINA'S "FAMINE"

The American Red Cross has officially decided against entering upon famine relief in China, at this time. This decision has been arrived at after a thorough survey of the China field by a commission appointed by the society. The commission found that the widespread destitution existing in China is due less to natural causes than to the indifference of greedy and ruthless overlords to the welfare of their people. That the commission is convinced that this condition would be made worse rather than better by outside charity is evident from its statement that:

"Chinese leaders would no doubt give more thought to the removal of the causes which impoverish their people and bring on such tragedies if they realized the necessity of assuming full responsibility for resulting relief needs. Any acceptance of that responsibility by foreign agencies cannot but retard this all-important result."

The facts discovered by this survey were outlined in these columns at the time the appointment of the commission was announced. They are familiar to all who know China, as it is and as it has been for a great many years. The Free Press also made bold to predict that the American Red Cross would come to the conclusion to which it now has come, viz., that the only permanent remedy for the consequences of misgovernment is to compel those guilty of it to assume the undivided responsibility for its effect on the governed.

What China is suffering from is less crop famine than an ethical famine among its rulers. American funds sent to China to relieve distress caused by the rapacity of these rulers encourages the latter by protecting them in a measure from the just vengeance of those whom they plunder. Americans are notoriously freehanded and soft-hearted; but they have better use for their charity than exporting it to China, where it is made the excuse for delaying reforms that must be made before China can lay claim to being self-sufficient.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK. — Seven months ago when President Coolidge signed the Jones Five-and-Ten Law, with its heavy penalties for those detected totin' likker, New Yorkers looked at each other and said: "Where is this thing to end, and when it does end, which end will it end at?"

That was last March — one of Cal's last official facts — and here it is autumn, without the law causing a single trial, so far, in Manhattan.

"I'm an old man," said Mark Twain, "and I've known many roublers; but most of them never happened."

JIMMY'S TROUBLE

"You see," says Mayor Walker, "I didn't start the game right. I ought to have grown whiskers and served tea and gone around with an air as if the camp chairs had been folded up and called for and then nobody would have called me a playboy. I've had a lot of fun. The trouble is, I haven't had as much as I get credit for or the blame for. That's where MY kick comes."

CAR SCENE

I encountered my gentleman, blue-shirted and homeward bound on an open Broadway trolley car — a capable giant who having contributed worth-while to the hours intervening since sun-up, was at peace with all the world.

He was conversing with a companion, apparently oblivious of the embarrassed little woman in faded black who had just seated herself beside him, unprovided with carfare.

IN CHINATOWN
Ten Chinese graduates of American colleges labor daily in Chinatown teaching the American-born youngsters of native shirt destroyers the lingo and literature back of the Chinese laundry ticket.

Also an almond-eyed mortician has hung out his shingle in Hop Town, taking the undertaking trade away from two New Yorkers who, in past years, have reaped a fortune planting defunct sons and daughters of Confucius.

Likewise — the Wong Sisters are operating a beauty parlor in the domain of the basswood god, and already the Younger Set of Chinatown has gone nuts over the Garbo bob.

HARDENED

I was reading the ads in the Sunday book review.
"Here's one," said I. And I read to the Duchess the following:
"Magazines want new authors."

She regarded me from under lazy lids.

"Ah," said she, with a touch of pathos, "I thought, 'more chambermaids to the front!'"

Can it be that the Duchess is becoming hardened?

PRIMITIVE NEW YORKER

The average New Yorker's idea of "reverting to the primitive" is "to walk around the flat" on Sunday morning without a shave, in a pair of frayed pajamas.

LIFE IN TOPEKA AND ELSEWHERE

Jay House, Philadelphia newspaper columnist, visiting the home folks in Kansas, says he was served liquor in 13 or 14 of the homes in Topeka. And they are "the best people in town," he says. House says that in Topeka there are four drinking parties to the city block every night. He estimates drinking among Topeka women has increased 1,000 per cent in 20 years.

Doubtless Mr. House likes his little joke and exaggerates a bit. But his observations are interesting if only half true. Even quite ardent drys will probably admit that house to house drinking was not quite so common, 20 or even 10 years ago.

WIGS AND FLAPPERS

Prof. A. M. Low, brilliant British scientist, predicts that in 2,000 years the most advanced flapper of the day may wear thick glasses, false teeth and a wig. But she will be so intelligent these things won't be held against her.

We need not be so far from that age now. If girls, resisting study and refusing to go to college, only knew it, they would be vastly more popular if they were less dumb. And this is true despite the traditional success of the beautiful but dumb. After all, brains help.

A NEWSPAPER STORY

Trained newspaper reporters spend hours and days in running down rumor, sifting stories and arriving at facts. When the facts are printed there is always someone to say: "It's only a newspaper story." Folks seem to be getting into the bad habit of automatically discrediting the printed word. On the other hand, the most careless gossip peddler and dealer in scandal is sure of a ready and sympathetic ear. The story is repeated and waxed fast by repetition. Everybody believes it. "They say" steals the stamp of truth, while "I read" languishes without believers. This is a queer, unforgeable and unfounded reversal of form. The played word is the result of an honest attempt to arrive at the accuracy. "They say," carries all the weight of the prattle of parrots.

PROGRESS IN AVIATION ASCRIBED TO FEDERAL ACTIVITIES

By DAVID S. INGALLS
Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics.

(David S. Ingalls was born in 1899. He was a graduate of Yale university and Harvard Law school. During the World War he joined the Yale aerial unit at the age of 18 and was attached to a British squadron. For several years he practiced law in Cleveland, O. Last spring he was appointed assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics by President Hoover. He holds the British Flying Cross, the navy's Distinguished Service Medal and the Navy Cross.)

The great advances made by aviation in the past few years are due to activities of the government since the World War.

At the present time I fly, first from a sense of duty; second, from a conviction that flying is the quickest and least obnoxious method of transportation; and third, from a love of flying.

What great advances were made during the world war when sets of aeronautical engineers, with one another to produce aircraft more and more efficient, urged on by the fact that life lay for their fellow citizens in the superiority of their article. But even so, comparison of the present-day plane with that of the wartime plane leads us to appreciate a great peace-time development of aviation.

Much is due, to be sure, to Lindbergh and his historic flight, as well as the creditable feats of the air that have been accomplished in recent years, but more is due to our government in the development of aviation from a very chaotic state immediately after the war to a solid, thriving industry and method of transportation.

Far greater are we indebted to the wise men of the Morrow board which in 1925 and 1926 outlined the policies that should govern commercial aviation in this country. Compliance with the board's recommendations has resulted most favorably for our country commercially and as a matter of national defense.

Thanks to the great development of aviation in this and in other countries it no longer takes men of extraordinary skill, ability and courage to pilot an airplane. Though not fool proof, the plane of today is far easier to fly than that of the past, and the average person with normal physique and good eyesight should have no particular difficulties in piloting a plane, and once fascinated, there is probably no more fascinating and entrancing sport in the world and now that have once started have given it up.

As a matter of fact, one of the fortunate things about the situation at present of airplane travel is that, taking it altogether, the vehicle itself, the airplane and the engine, has been developed far further than the incidental matters such as airports, air routes, etc. The main thing, in other words, is really an accomplished fact. The development of airports, air routes and so on, after all, though costly as a matter of time, something that is perfectly sure to come

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

It is so very true, that sometimes insignificant, unimportant matters can bring about great phenomena. Even world history is affected by comparatively insignificant things.

I wonder now many of you realize that Columbus's voyage of discovery was probably motivated, at least in part, by a shortage of drugs to propound beauty aids as well as cosmetics? Of course there was a need for other drugs, spices and various other commodities obtainable in India and important to the trade, but it is reasonable to suppose, knowing women, that when a shortage threatened for the 15th century dressing table there was much feminine lamenting and much pressure brought to bear. Isabelle undoubtedly had visions of great conquests for Spain, but I think we are justified in suspecting that this question of personal beautification may have made her more than ever willing to aid this brave adventurer.

For beauty was in its early heyday then. Hours and hours were spent gazing into the mirror, the while milady applied the most authentic beauty methods of the day. Perfume, because of the great demand for it, became one of the greatest industries of Italy.

France shortly carried this honor away from Italian shores and has maintained this leadership up until the present.

Every woman in those times kept herself supplied with hair dyes, lip tints, special soaps for her hair and body, and some very elegant ladies even indulged in milk and champagne baths. Those were luxurious days.

Perhaps the whole spirit of the time is best reflected in the many adventures, even before the famous Fonce de Leon, who, inspired by their womenfolk, sought in the new world, a mysterious magic which would bring eternal life to eternal youth. How little humanity has changed, despite our great discoveries and developments.

Even in this age of skepticism I firmly believe that one could get up a pilgrimage to any spot which boasted a youth-giving, life-elongating fountain!

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Problems in economics belong on the puzzle page.

Take agricultural troubles.

The farmer groans that he is in desperate straits because the high protective tariff compels him to foot such awful bills for everything he has to buy; whereas he, under protected, must content himself with the lowest kind of prices for what he has to sell.

He mentions harvesters and other machinery—dire necessities, to enable him to produce at all—as among the essentials which cost him like sixty, while he is forced to take anything he can get for the crops he raises.

Senator Furnifold M. Simmons of North Carolina, a great tariff authority, bears him out in this complaint.

"The implement industry," says the senator, "is the one industry in America that has managed to maintain its prices at or near war level, with the prices of almost everything else coming down."

Yet, on investigation, we discover that farm machinery is entirely unprotected. It is on the free list.

Solve that one.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho was discussing the subject recently.

"For every $1,000 invested on Jan. 1, 1920, in the capital stock of the International Harvester company," he said, "the today's combined amount of dividends paid on that stock, plus the increase in the market value of the stock as of May 11, 1923, would amount to $5,400 plus interest on the dividends paid since 1920."

"This is the International Harvester company dealing directly with the American farmer. At a time when the latter's costs are increasing and his income decreasing, the value of the things which he has to buy, in order to produce, is raised to this enormous extent."

The Idaho lawmaker omitted to mention that Alexander Legge, under whose management, as head of the International, so handsome an advance in the company's stock was scored, is now at the head of the federal farm board, trying to find means of improving agriculture's financial status. However, it was unnecessary, his auditors affirm thought of it, anyway.

The senator did not, indeed, confine himself to the International.

The profit on a stock investment in the Case Threshing Machine company, he remarked, would have amounted to 133 per cent, plus interest on the dividends, in six and three-fourths years ending May 11, 1929; in the case of the Deere Implement company it would have been 333 per cent for two and one-third years—as usual, plus interest on the dividends.

"The most unconscionable and brutal record in the economic history of the United States," concluded the Idaho legislator, "when we take into consideration the condition of the farmer since 1922, is the record of these implement companies, as disclosed by their own figures."

As a matter of fact, there is an answer to the puzzle involved in the discrepancy between farm machinery prices and the circumstance that such implements are on the free list.

Sensor Simmons himself furnished it, and it would be unfair not to tell what it is, for no one would be likely to hit on it unaided.

"It is true," explained the senator, "that farm implements are on the free list, but it is also true that the materials from which they are manufactured are upon the dutiable list, and bear some of the highest duties carried in the pending tariff bill.

"These are the duties which enable the makers of farm machinery to keep up their prices—coupled with the lack of any serious competition between them.

"That a finished product which he requires is on the free list is no help to the farmer if the material which goes into it is heavily protected. In the purchase of an implement with which to cultivate his acres, he must pay all the duties, all the bounties that are carried by the raw materials from which it is manufactured."

Cut the flower petals from red mangoes, cutting the yellow very fine with a little bit of the green for the center and the leaves and stem from the green mangoes.

REAL OLD-FASHIONED KIND MANGO PEPPERS

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Wash the mangoes in cold water and cut off tops, removing seeds and white pith. Take as many heads of firm cabbage as you judge necessary to fill the hollowed mango peppers.

Chop the cabbage quite fine. Add one-third cup brown mustard seed, one-third cup celery seed, one-third cup coriander seed. Add two cups vinegar and two cups sugar. Take one-fourth cup cloves and one-fourth cup stick cinnamon and tie in a bag. Put into your vinegar solution and bring to a hard boil. Let cool. Pack a crock with mangoes which have been filled with cabbage. Fasten tops back on peppers by stitches or by two or three wooden toothpicks. Pour the vinegar, which has stood long enough to cool, over them. For three consecutive mornings pour the vinegar off, boil, let it cool, and put back over the mangoes. After the third morning cover the jar or crock with muslin and a plate or weight down

The Value of Olive Oil
"Does olive oil have any food or medicinal value? How can its purity be tested in the home? "H."

Olive oil, as its name implies, is an oil obtained from the olive. It has no medicinal value. It will NOT dissolve gallstones; nor will any other oil, for that matter. Notice I put that not in capitals. Recently I had a letter asking me to give my olive oil treatment for gallstones that the writer cut out but has lost! If it was my article she was referring to, she hadn't read it carefully. The "stones" which will be passed by anyone after consuming any food oil in large quantities, are nothing but soap concretions made from the excess oil and the alkali bile in the intestines and can be demonstrated as such, for they will melt.

Olive oil is liked for its characteristic flavor, but as far as its food value is concerned, it has no other advantage over other vegetable oils. All edible oils add richness and high energy value to the food, for they average 100 calories to the tablespoonful. For instance, your salad dressing may come to 200 to 300 calories, while your salad—say, of lettuce—can be composed of as much as one-quarter pound of the leaves—this makes a good sized salad—and only 20 C! This point is to be thought of by those who are overweight and have to limit their calories.

The testings of any oils are very complicated chemical and physical methods, which can be done only in a chemical laboratory, H. As for home testing of olive oil, the only thing you can depend on is its characteristic flavor.

The adulterants of olive oil are usually cheaper vegetable oils, but these would not alter the food value of the mixture in any way.

We have a pamphlet on Kidney and Bladder Disorders, and an article on stones, which can be obtained by following column rules.

"In one of my breasts there seems to be a lump which is not painful at all. Am afraid to see a doctor for fear he might say I need to be operated on, as that is about the only thing a doctor thinks of nowadays. Is there anything you could advise me to do?"
MRS. G."

Certainly, every doctor thinks of an operation for a lump in the breast that isn't due to an acute inflammation, Mrs. G. If you would only realize how un-intelligent it is not to go to a doctor because you fear he might advise an operation! You don't have to submit to an operation if you don't want to even if you need it; you can let the lump go on until, perhaps, it develops into a cancer and reaches the inoperable stage, if you prefer!

Any lump in the breast had best be removed (unless it is due to an acute inflammatory condition when other treatments are remedial). If there is no cancerous change now, the operation will be very slight and leave practically no scar. If you wait until later, when there is a cancerous change, then your whole breast will have to be removed, with some of the chest muscles, and all the glands under the arm. A very mutilating operation.

Not all lumps in the breast are cancerous, by any means, but the consensus of opinions is that all non-inflammatory lumps should be removed on account of cancer possibilities. Not having any pain does not mean there are no cancer possibilities. It is really unfortunate that these potentially cancerous lumps are not more often associated with pain. (They are associated with a good deal of pain later on.)

If you are interested in literature on the subject, write to the American Society for the Control of Cancer, 25 West 43rd St., New York City.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

My laundress called me up the other day and sobbingly told me she could not come to work for some time as she was ill from worry and had to go away for a rest.

It was all on account of her daughter, she said. The mother had worked hard at washing and scrubbing—gave her girls—who were ambitious—a good education. Their father wasn't interested. He thought they should get out and work as soon as they were old enough to do so. The mother and the older one had one year of college.

This year the younger one had decided she, too, would like to go to school, and she had her trunk all packed to go, when the boy friend persuaded her to marry him. They went off for a week-end "visit" and came back to announce that they were married.

"It's a nice boy," sobbed Rosie, "and he says he'll take care of Violet, but I can't help worrying for fear she'll have to go through what I did."

Now we parents know that you young people didn't ask to be brought into the world (neither did we) and that you don't owe us a thing on that score. But we also know that we've treated you pretty decently since then—most of us—and done everything we could to make life pleasant.

You've taken it all, too, so don't think you owe us an even break? We usually consult you, or at least tell you, if we are planning any big move that will mean a difference in your lives. Why not let us in on your wedding plans? Suppose we object to the boy friend? We MIGHT be right about him, you know, and as you will probably be married a long time when you DO marry, maybe you could afford to wait a little while so as to be SURE you've picked the right one.

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl 17 years old and am deeply in love with a boy one year my junior. He loves me very much. Yes, you could be married in the town you speak of, and you would probably need two witnesses, but don't do it, dear. Wait a little while to see if you can't get your parents' consent to marry at home. You wouldn't want your mother to have a nervous breakdown, would you, on account of such a shock? You know it means that you will leave home never to return save as a visitor, and that means a big change in your parents' life and a loss.

Think how you would feel if your mother or father went away without letting you know they were going, and with someone whom you disliked. Wouldn't it be a shock? Well, you put them in that position when you run off and get married.

AFTER THE BALL

"Of all the dances I have ever seen, today's was the prettiest one," said Buttercup, then sighed. "I should love to dance, too. I wish that I could fly away like the rest of you, but from daylight to dark I am here in the spot where I was born and the only time I even move is when the kind winds rock me gently to and fro. Being a flower has its disadvantages."

"Never mind, Buttercup, dear," said Sir Butterfly, "even if you can't go to your friends, your friends will all come to you, and you make them all very happy by being just your own bright, cheery self. You are so dependable, and your friends always know where they can find you."

"Which counts for a great deal," remarked Peter

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Xenia radio fans who tuned in on the scrap between Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion, and Vince Dundee in which the one and only Jack Dempsey made his bow as a fistic promoter at Chicago Wednesday night, heard the one and only Graham McNamee cross-examine the former heavyweight champion of the world on the possibility of his return to the ring.

"Why bring that up?" answered the one-time mauler good-naturedly in response to the announcer's question of whether he would ever fight again, adding, more over, "I like fighting, but I like promoting, too."

Jack went on record that he had found a liking for the executive side of the boxing game and that promoting holds more appeal for him. He indicated that he would not re-enter the ring again unless he goes broke as a promoter, a possibility that seems far distant judging from the way his first snow was patronized.

Taking time out to confess that the program was being sponsored by the Scripps Howard chain of newspapers, Graham inquired of Jack what he thought of Jack Sharkey's recent decisive victory over Tommy Loughran.

Jack replied that the quick knockout did not come as a great surprise to him. Speaking from the standpoint of his own experience Dempsey admitted that Sharkey possessed real inside information on the art of boxing and Jack.

Dempsey's wife, the former Estelle Taylor, who also spoke a few words to listening fight fans, expressed satisfaction that her famous husband had turned promoter, explaining that it was a relief not to be listening in over a radio on a fight in which Jack was participating and worrying about the outcome.

Jack also expressed the hope that he might stage a heavyfight tournament in the near future to decide the heavyweight title.

The absurdity of the unusually long playing season in the major baseball leagues this season has finally made its impression on the big chiefs, who have announced the welcome decision to shorten the playing season in 1930.

The little interest being manifested at present in the league games, which are meaningless as far as the standings of the contending teams are concerned, influenced the decision. Attendance has fallen off in every city with the possible exception of Chicago and Philadelphia.

For example, the Yankees, always a great drawing card in any city, have been playing games before crowds of less than 500 paid admissions. At Cincinnati a few days ago the stands on one occasion contained less than 300 paying customers.

Little importance is attached to the remaining games on the schedule and it is small wonder that the fans take slight interest in baseball, other than to watch the sport columns for news devoted to the coming world series.

The league magnates naturally enough are worried and have decided to try to eliminate the cause of this apparent apathy on the part of fans.

It is likely that the 1930 baseball season will be shortened two or three weeks in order that it will be all over by the time the first big football game is played Saturday in October—rolls around and attention of the public is diverted from the diamond to the gridiron.

BOWLING

The champion Greene County Lumber Co. retained exclusive possession of first place in the Recreation League by winning two out of three games from the Arch-O-Pedic Shoes in a league bowling match Saturday night. One league record was broken when "Dinty" Moore, member of the losing quintet, rolled 252, bettering the former league mark for high individual game held jointly by L. McCoy and Alavalaz, by one pin. Moore had a series of 590. Peterson led the winners with 578.

In a City League match earlier in the evening the Beckett Auto Co. won the odd game in three from the Hooven and Allison Co. team, member of the H. and A. team, bettered the league record for high individual game established by Purdon by thirteen pins when he rolled 248 his last game. Box scores:

RESERVES MEET RUNNERS-UP IN NATIONAL TOURNAMENT SUNDAY

GREENE COUNTY BOY SCOUT TROOPS WILL BE INSPECTED SOON

District Scout commissioners of each county comprising Tecumseh Council are endeavoring to inspect all troops within their jurisdiction before Thanksgiving Day.

A program of inspection for Greene County has been arranged tentatively so that S. N. McClellan, Xenia, district commissioner for Greene County district, and Homer T. Gratz, field executive, may jointly visit the nine troops in this county between October 16 and November 7.

Dates for the inspection of troops in Greene County are announced as follows:

Troop No. 40, East High School, Wednesday, October 16 at 7:30. (E. A. Roberts, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 41, Xenia, at Scout Cabin, Thursday, October 24 at 7:30. (R. H. Kingsbury, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 42, Jamestown, (no date assigned); Troop No. 43, Xenia, Monday, October 28 at 7:30. (D. C. Anderson, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 45, Xenia, at Scout Cabin Friday, November 1 at 7:30. (Ernest Blackburn, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 53, New Burlington—T. C. Haydock, Scoutmaster. (no date assigned); Troop No. 54, Osborn, Wednesday, Oct. 23, 7:30. (C. F. Ray, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 56, Yellow Springs, Thursday, November 14 at 7:30. (Merrill Dawson, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 62, O. S. and S. O. Home, Thursday, November 7, at 7:30. (E. L. Blackburn, Scoutmaster).

Inspections are to be made with the thought of helping the Scoutmasters and when possible, making valuable suggestions. It is suggested that on inspection nights all troop committeemen be present so that the inspecting officer may confer with them and explain some of the new plans, making sure that each member has a definite task.

IMPERIALS TO OPEN AGAINST TIPP CITY MERCHANTS SUNDAY

Imperials football eleven, newly organized independent Xenia team, will open its 1929 gridiron season against the Tipp City Merchants Sunday afternoon at Tippecanoe City. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

Tipp City will have the psychological advantage of having played one game as the Merchants opened their season auspiciously last Sunday, defeating St. Marys, 12 to 0.

Included in the Tipp lineup will be Butch Myers, Bob Drummer, former Beaver star of Dayton, and other well known players. The Imperials have indulged in several workouts, of which two have been of strenuous character, in preparation for the opener.

Members of the local squad expecting to play Sunday are requested to be at Washington Park at 7:30 o'clock Friday night. The squad will meet at the Geyer book store at 12:15 p. m. Sunday and will leave for Tipp City at that time.

"KONJOLA GAVE ME HEALTH AFTER ALL ELSE HAD FAILED"

Former Sufferer Relieved of Stomach Trouble And Rheumatism; Says Medicine Will Do For Others As It Did For Him.

"Konjola gave me health after all else had failed," said Mr. E. W. Haley, Jefferson, Ohio. "The rheumatic pains were so severe that it was hard for me to do anything. I was bothered some with kidney trouble—making me rise during the night. Stomach disorders added their misery. Gas and bloating and a general soreness in the pit of my stomach were with me constantly. "Konjola proved to be the medicine that I always needed. It went right to work. First my kidneys responded to the treatment. Then my stomach began to function normally and today I can eat anything I want. Lately the rheumatic pains vanished. Konjola was certainly a blessing to me and I endorse it to all who suffer as I once did." opportunity of seeing the team that fought its way to the finals of the national amateur baseball tournament a week ago only to lose out to Pleasant Ridge of Cincinnati in the final three-game series.

With its pitching ace, Charley Maxton, on the hill, the Reserves, however, are counting on putting up a better game than the Cubs probably bargain for.

Reserves are bringing to a close one of the best seasons in the club's history. Twenty games have been won against three defeats. The only team which has been able to beat the Reserves this season is the American Railway Express nine of Dayton. This team turned the trick three times.

SCOUT DISTRICT TO PLAN ACHIEVEMENT ROUND-UP AT MEET

Plans for an "Achievement Round-up" will be discussed at a meeting of the Greene County district Scout committee at Xenia Central High School Monday night, October 7 at 7 o'clock.

At 8 o'clock the same evening there will be a board of review for all of the approximately 150 Scouts of Greene County and Court of Honor dates will be announced also that evening.

Ranks above the tenderfoot class must go before the board of review and no Scout is eligible to appear before the Court of Honor until he has passed by this board.

A feature of the proposed "Achievement Round-up" is that during a designated period of perhaps six weeks each Scout will strive to perfect himself or achieve something worth while that he has heretofore not attained.

The idea is expected to be extended to embrace the entire Tecumseh Council, in which event nearly 1,500 Scouts would interest themselves in becoming more proficient in some endeavor.

TESTIMONY OF A COLLEGE BOY

A college boy, when asked what he derived from a service of worship, said: "One thing I know—the worship service has been the directive force in my life. When I am in a low level, it stimulates me, as it lifts me to a level where it is easy and a joy to believe in God."

The enrichment of life comes in no other way than by cultivating and reconstructing personality. This enriching experience can be attained through learning the art of worship.

These four youths, probably from 12 to 15 years of age, were taken captive in Judah by Nebuchadnezzar and were carried off to Babylon to serve as hostages for that monarch; they were young noblemen, handsome in appearance, with no physical blemishes, sprightly in bearing and they were of a noble lineage.

Home Education

DOING NEEDED WORK WELL

Many years ago there lived in Scotland a man named John McAdam who was greatly interested in his family history. He traced his lineage back almost to Adam, the first man, and was eager to clear up some doubtful relations when his neighbors called upon him with the request that he improve the highway through his farm. They said that the worst stretch of road in all Scotland was the one through his estate and they begged him to make it better.

John was a little provoked that his interesting study should be interrupted and he determined that he would make a road once and for all time, that never again when he was engaged in study would he be disturbed. So he had several feet of clay hauled off the road and placed crushed rock as a lower layer and then finer rock on top of that; he then rolled it down well and bound the surface with water and said to himself, "There I guess that will last long enough to give me a chance on my history."

And it did. It lasted a great deal longer than that. People began to hear of that road all over Europe. They began to build roads like it in other parts of the country and in other countries. And here is the strange thing about it. Nobody knows whether Mr. McAdam finished that family history or not and nobody cares, but every one knows what a macadam road is.—D. Carl Yoder.

V. 17. "Now as for these youths, God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom; and Daniel had knowledge and understanding in all visions and dreams; their faith had endeared them to God and he had blessed their studies. Wisdom comes not from within, but from without and is therefore the gift of God.—Deane.

V. 19. "And the king commanded with them; and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Michael and Azariah; therefore stood they before the king."

Every one has his examination day, a day of accounting, when only ability and character will count. No one can afford to eat, drink or mistreat his body and less yet to lessen his moral integrity; this calls for habits that will not tolerate anything that weakens, defiles and corrupts soul or body.

V. 20. "And he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters that were in his realm." They were given not only a passing grade but "cum laude" honors. All because there was a purpose in early life not "to de-

The Theater

Theda Bara, once-famed movie vampire, is planning to stage a comeback, literally and figuratively, by appearing in the title role of a vaudeville sketch opening at a New York theater soon, it is announced.

Miss Bara, a native of Cincinnati, was once the principal exponent of that type of screen beauty who entangled the stumbling, love-blinded hero in the meshes of her maidenly charms. She was, as a vampire, at the peak of her profession and even went so far as to do a "Romeo and Juliet" picture.

She was succeeded as a movie spider by Louise Glaum, but the Productions, capitalized for $200,000 by Mrs. McPherson's name heading the list of directors.

The Xenia Little Theater Guild is getting under way for its second season by inaugurating a membership campaign, plans for which will be announced soon. Miss Allegra Hawes will be in charge of the drive by which the Guild hopes to extend its influence to an even larger circle this year. The membership fee, of course, will include admissions to the Guild's program of plays, which will be sufficient compensation for the members.

Lillian Gish, just home from Europe, is hurrying to Hollywood in the belief that talkies will have opened up a new field for her talents.

vogue for sirens passed and both passed from the public attention. "My style of vamping is not in vogue on the screen now," says Miss Bara, "so I am returning to the stage." She is the wife of Charles J. Brabin, the screen director. Miss Bara's old fans wish her success in her attempted comeback.

Anita Loos, who, with her husband, John Emerson, was quite a figure around the Hollywood studios before she became internationally prominent through her novel, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," has broken into the news dispatches as the exponent of a new fashion.

Miss Loos says tweed pajamas on the "harem-skirt" principle are the smartest things yet for house wear. "I am not a dress reformer," says Anita, "but these pajamas are the most comfortable things for house wear that one could imagine." They are already becoming popular in France and I hope to introduce them to America. I am looking forward to the longer skirt. It will make women look more feminine. Manish women are very amusing and tolerated so long as they do not take themselves too seriously.

Aimee Semple McPherson (now is the time to drop out if you don't care to hear any more about her) has gone into the movie business. The other day this column reported her plans to make talkie pictures of her sermons for use in her outlying Four-Square Gospel Churches. Incorporation papers were placed on file in Sacramento, Calif., Thursday for the Angelus

TO OBSERVE RALLY DAY HERE SUNDAY

Coming at the end of the conventional vacation period and the beginning of the new church year, Rally Day will be observed at the First Lutheran Church, 303 W. Main St., Sunday. The day is generally observed in the United Lutheran Church in America. Either the last Sunday in the church year or the first may be used, depending upon the individual congregations.

The Sunday School of the local Lutheran Church will meet in the church room. This change becomes necessary because of the increased attendance of both primary and junior departments. Members of the Luther League will decorate the church interior in an appropriate manner for the occasion. Sunday School will begin at 9:15 with Carl Mellage, superintendent, in charge.

"The Challenge of Today," will be the subject of the sermon which will be preached by the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold, at the morning worship, 10:30.

Rudolph G. Schulz, Jr., Columbus, executive secretary of the Luther League of Ohio, will be the principal speaker at the young peoples' meeting at six p. m. He has had rich experience in this kind of work, and a very interesting program is anticipated. Miss Halcy Strider, Bellbrook Ave., will be the leader for Sunday night.

THIRTEEN DEAD IN PEN RIOTS

COALITION STANDS FOR NON-PARTISAN TARIFF COMMISSION

Administration Of Problems Duty Of Proposed Body

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—After defeating President Hoover on the flexible tariff and effecting a compromise on tariff valuations, the Democratic-Insurgent coalition in the senate today battled for creation of a non-partisan tariff commission for the administration of all tariff problems.

The coalition held out for a non-partisan commission, to be named by the president, which would be composed of economic, industrial and agricultural experts who would settle each tariff controversy on its economic merits. The Republican leadership assailed this plan, and contended for continuation of the present bipartisan commission of three Republicans and three Democrats.

A decision on this issue will about conclude the battle over administrative provisions in the new bill. Thus far, the Republican organization has run a bad second in the flexible tariff row, the administration was defeated and the president was stripped of all emergency powers over rates. In the valuation contest, Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, insurgent leader, effected a compromise by which both sides gained their points.

The valuation case was settled by adoption of the house provision, directing the president to use any governmental agency in determining "the extent to which values in the United States may properly be used as a basis for assessment of customs duties."

RESUME PROBE OF BRIBERY CHARGES

CANTON, O., Oct. 4.—Additional witnesses were summoned before the Stark County grand jury today as investigation was resumed into the letting of contracts for the new Molly Stark tuberculosis sanitarium.

Indicating that new developments in the probe had caused him to change his mind, Prosecutor Henry W. Hartner, Jr., abandoned a previously announced plan to recess the grand jury until next week.

The investigation here resulted from indictments made in both Cuyahoga and Stark counties against Charles A. Fromm, president of the Stark County board of commissioners, on charges of soliciting a bribe in connection with awarding the hospital contracts. Fromm is scheduled for trial in Cleveland October 23.

MAG DONALD PARTY ARRIVES IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—A new era in Anglo-American relations marked by the reduction of navies, to insure world peace, was believed imminent today when Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald, head of the British Labor government, arrived here enroute for Washington to confer with President Hoover.

The British prime minister will reach Washington late this afternoon to discuss Anglo-American questions, but, especially, plans for five-power naval limitations conference in January.

EX-SECRETARY FALL TAKEN ILL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—On the eve of his trial here for "accepting a $100,000 bribe," Ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall has been taken ill.

The former cabinet officer, and central figure in the oil scandals, was said today to have passed "a fairly comfortable night." His temperature was lower this morning.

Fall is being attended by a physician who accompanied him from New Mexico and by his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Chase.

FIND HEADLESS BODY

AUTHORITIES SEEK TO IDENTIFY TRAIN VICTIM FOUND HERE

Body Discovered Early Friday By Track Workers East Of Jamestown Pike Pennsy Crossing; Partially Identify Remains

The decapitated body of a well dressed white man about 45 years old was found along the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, midway between the Jamestown crossing and the overhead bridge, two miles east of Xenia, at 6 a. m. Friday by members of a section crew.

No marks of identification were found on the body and authorities are puzzled by the absence of papers or anything in the man's clothes that would serve as a clew through which his identity could be established.

Patrolman Fred Jones, who viewed the body at the R. M. Neeld undertaking parlors, where it was removed, said that he closely resembled a man who gave his name as Omer Whetstone, 44, 111 Montana Ave., Dayton, who was locked up at Police Headquarters part of Wednesday night on a charge of loitering and was released Thursday morning.

Members of the section gang who found the body lying along the eastbound track reported the discovery to the main office here and subsequently an examination was made by Dr. F. M. Chambliss, county coroner, and Dr. W. A. Galoway, Pennsylvania railway surgeon.

It is the coroner's opinion the man was struck by a train late Thursday night as death had taken place from six to ten hours previously. The severed head was found fifty feet away from the body.

The circumstances, according to Coroner Chambliss, point to suicide.

An attempt to identify the body was expected to be made Friday afternoon by Fred O. Lienceur, Pennsylvania Railroad detective, who arrested the man whom Pat-

AMNESIA VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED; GIRL WORKED AS ARTIST

Wanted To Disappear Friends Claim; Father Called

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4.—A girl artist who had often wished she would "wake up somewhere unknown" is the amnesia victim here whom police believe today they have identified as Miss Alice Walsh, 21, of Madison, Wis., and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin art and architecture college.

William Walsh, president of the Dane County Motor Co., who is the father of Alice, was reported enroute to Cleveland today to positively identify the mysterious amnesia victim here and to take care of her.

The girl arrived in Cleveland Wednesday from Chicago, seeking the aid of local authorities in establishing her identity. She talked with Mrs. Walsh in Madison over long distance telephone late yesterday. Although she was very vague about her past and did not seem to recognize Mrs. Walsh's voice, the girl was identified by the mother as her daughter. Mrs. Walsh told police authorities that her daughter had been working as a commercial artist in a Madison department store. She failed to arrive.

Friends of Alice at Madison informed local authorities that Alice had often expressed a desire to disappear and reappear in a distant city as an unknown person.

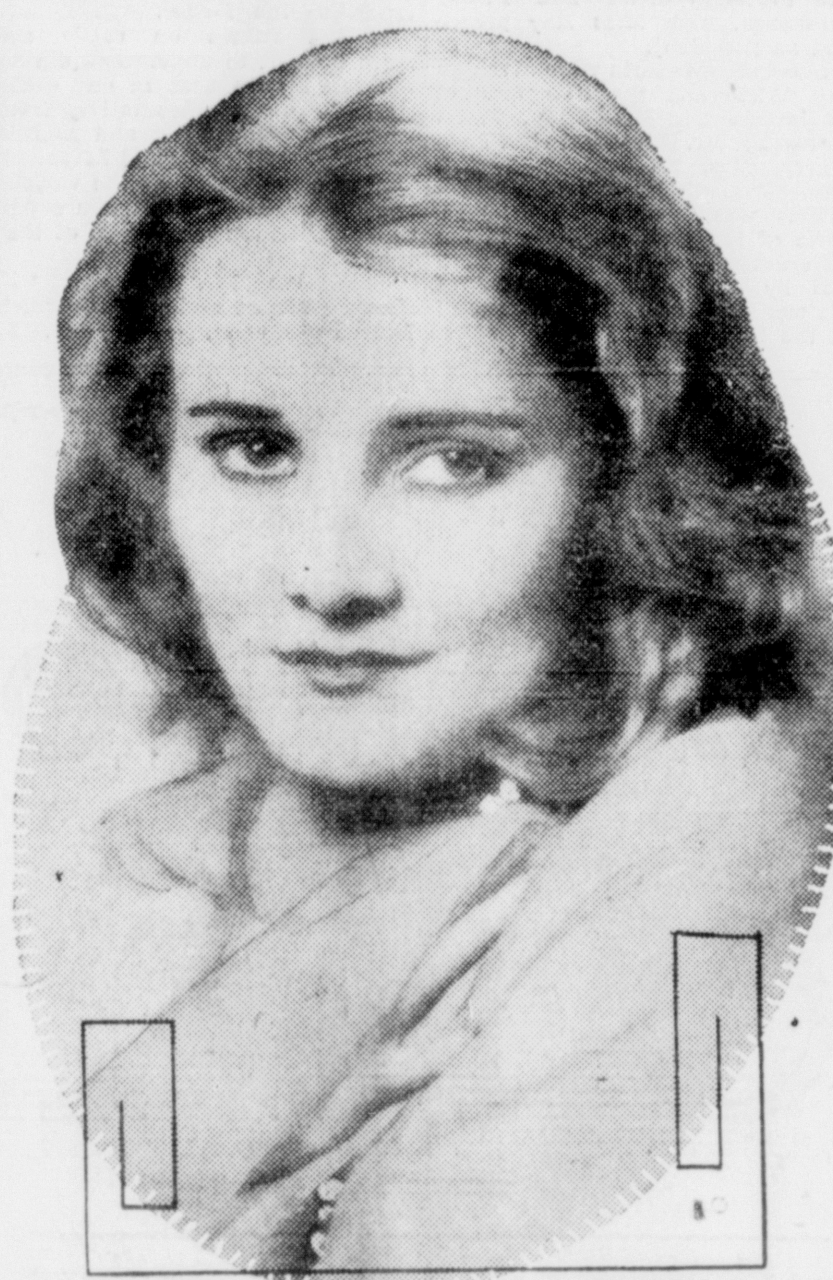

Despite police assurance that her name is Alice, the girl still appeared in a dazed, uncertain state today and not at all positive that her identity has been established.

CORONER REPORTS VICTIM MURDERED

URBANA, O., Oct. 4.—That Homer Lucas, whose body was found in a cistern in Mechanicsburg, this county, September 23, was murdered, is the statement which is contained in the report of Coroner Irving Armpriester, which he completed today.

Since the finding of Lucas' body, an extensive investigation has been carried on by county authorities. As yet no direct charge of murder has been placed against the father, brother and step-mother of the dead man, all of whom are being held in the county jail.

JEANNE EAGLES DIES SUDDENLY

JEANNE EAGLES

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Broadway—the street that knows perhaps better than any other the heights of gaiety and depths of sorrow—was plunged into sadness today. It mourned the loss of one of its most popular and glittering figures, Jeanne Eagles.

The brilliant actress, who leaped into international fame through her creation of the role of Sadie Thompson in Somerset Maugham's record-run play "Rain", died suddenly in a private hospital last night while awaiting treatment for a nervous ailment.

There was some mystery as to the cause. The hospital physician who first reported the death could give no reason. Later on, it was diagnosed as due to "alcoholic psychosis."

DANCER TESTIFIES AGAINST PANTAGES ON ATTACK CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, today was to take the witness stand and tell of the alleged attack on her by Alexander Pantages, wealthy theatrical promoter.

Meanwhile Harry E. Hollum, manager of one of the Pantages' showhouses, was rounding out a twenty-four hour sentence in the county jail for contempt of court imposed yesterday by Judge Chas. Fricke for talking to one of the Pantages jurors.

Mrs. Irene Pringle, mother of the girl who accuses Pantages, and the state's first witness, described the condition of her daughter's body after the alleged attack, telling of the presence of "bruises and bites."

The mother identified a flaming red frock, a partly torn silk undergarment, a pair of silk hose and red dancing pumps as the clothes worn by her daughter when she left home the morning of her visit to Pantages' theater office.

All other witnesses including her daughter were sent from the courtroom before she began her story. The prosecution's examination of Mrs. Pringle was short. Defense

HIGH WATER CAUSES DAMAGE ALONG LAKE

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 4.—High water, whipped by stiff winds, is causing considerable damage along the Lake Erie and Sandusky Bay shores a check-up revealed today.

The waves have eaten away most of the beach in this district and the water stage is nearly as high as it was last spring when hundreds of acres of lowland were inundated. Steps are being taken at Huron to construct a breakwater to protect shore property.

CO-ED NEAR DEATH; AUTO DRIVER HELD

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—Gertrude Friend, 20-year-old Ohio State University co-ed, is near death in a local hospital and a 15-year-old boy, William Collins, is being held by juvenile authorities as he is admittedly the driver of the automobile which ran down and probably fatally injured the girl last night.

INVESTIGATION OF LOBBIES IS TAKING ON CONCRETE FORM

Senator Norris To Head Probe Is Indication

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The senate's lobby investigation was taking on concrete form today as demands that many organizations be put under the spotlight poured into the capitol.

Members of the senate judiciary committee, from the membership of which a sub-committee will be named to carry out the lobby probe, have taken unofficial cognizance of the demands, and are considering how far the investigation is to go.

Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee is slated to head the new body. The chairmanship was offered to Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas, but he declined, pleading other pressing work. Senators Gillett (R) of Massachusetts; Blaine (R) of Wisconsin; and Walsh (D) of Montana, probably will be the three senators who, with Norris and Caraway will comprise the committee.

Already the investigators have a large program ahead. Caraway has indicated he favored acceding to the request of the American Legion, which adopted a resolution demanding inquiry of ten peace organizations at its convention last Wednesday.

"I recollect we asked those boys to perform a far from agreeable task some time ago," Caraway said when notified of the legion request. "If they want any organization investigated, I think we should do it."

WEATHER OBSERVER FOR GREENE COUNTY NAMED HERE FRIDAY

Ernest Harner Of Fish Hatchery To Be Observer

Ernest Harner, county game warden and superintendent of the state fish hatchery, Springfield Pike, was appointed official U. S. weather observer for Xenia Friday by W. H. Alexander, Columbus, chief of the U. S. weather service in Ohio.

The action discontinues an observatory station at the O. S. S. O. Home, which has not been in operation for a year, and the instruments were removed immediately to the hatchery location. The station at the Home had been in operation for eight or ten years until about a year ago.

Difficulty in obtaining an observer to use the instruments there and furnish the daily reports required by the service, led to its falling into disuse and Mr. Alexander came to Xenia Friday in an attempt to restore the station to service under a competent observer.

Location of the station at the fish hatchery will give the hatchery superintendent an opportunity to check weather conditions which is expected to work to the advantage of the hatchery operation as well as the interests of the state weather service.

Reports from all Ohio weather bureaus are made directly to Mr. Alexander at Columbus daily, a check being kept on maximum and minimum temperatures, daily range in temperature, precipitation, cloudy conditions and other phenomena. Re-establishment of the station will make accurate weather information available to Xenians and assure authentic reports on weather conditions locally.

ARMSTRONG FOUND GUILTY OF CHARGE

MARYSVILLE, O., Oct. 4.—Following his conviction on a third offense liquor charge by a jury last night, Leonard Armstrong, 45, is expected to have his case appealed by his counsel here today.

The penalty for the charge against Armstrong is from one to five years in the Ohio State Penitentiary and a fine of from $500 to $2,000.

A jury disagreed at a previous trial. He was indicted by the Union County grand jury on a perjury charge resulting from his first trial.

Although his wife has a case pending in the Supreme Court, charging her with a second offense liquor violation, the couple may well be proud of a son who recently won a prize in a high school oration contest on the adherence to the eighteenth amendment.

PRISON OUTBREAK ENDS WHEN LEADER COMMITS SUICIDE

Cell House Turned Into Shambles In Bloody Fight

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 4.—Thirteen men—seven guards and six convicts—were killed here in a sixteen hour bloody riot at the state penitentiary, according to definite check at 7:30 this morning by officials in the warden's office.

Eleven others were wounded in the battle which continued throughout the night by between hundreds of militiamen, guards, peace officers and the enraged rioting prisoners who had barricaded themselves in a cell house demanding their freedom.

The property damage is estimated at $500,000. The chapel, dining room, and two cell houses are in shambles from fire.

Nearly 1,000 prisoners are herded in the prison yards and it is necessary to house them in tents indefinitely as a result of destruction of the cell houses.

The bloodiest battle in the history of Colorado penal institution ended shortly before 6 o'clock this morning.

SEE GUARDS SLAIN

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 3.—Two of the prison guards slaughtered in the Colorado State Penitentiary mutiny here—John Elles and Abe Wiggins—were placed so near a window of cell house No. 3 that their actual execution was witnessed by persons outside. Wiggins was seen to slump to the floor as the convicts released a barrage of bullets.

Elles was shot three times through the head and once through the body—and was then hurled while still alive from a window.

Wiggins lay in the cell house more than an hour. His body was then carried out by John Shea, a guard, who at the same time was sent out by the mutineers to deliver the final ultimatum, that, unless granted freedom by 10 o'clock Thursday night, all the hostages would be slain.

morning when Danny Daniels, ring leader of the outbreak, committed suicide by shooting himself.

Jimmy Pardue co-conspirator with Daniels, is believed to be dead also but his body was not recovered by the first exploratory party to enter cell house No. 3.

Officers had complete control of the situation at 6 o'clock and had started investigations to determine the exact death list and property damage, the latter being estimated at more than $500,000.

Daniels took his own life after he had led an all-night battle against hundreds of militiamen prison guards and peace officers who fired thousands of machine-gun and rifle shots, laid dynamite charges and barrages of tear gas in an effort to dislodge the rebellious prisoners from cell house No. 3.

The end of the bloody slaughter came after a battle in which a party halt in the bombardment of the barricaded prisoners to await the arrival here of an armed train from Denver and a supply of French 75's with which they planned to blow the cell house to bits.

In addition to Daniels, it was said by the first officers to enter the cell house that three other ring leaders of the insurrectionists had also apparently committed suicide by shooting themselves when their several demands for opportunity to parley for peace with the officers were refused.

The convicts found dead are:

POLICEMAN HELD ON BOND FOR SLAYING

CANTON, O., Oct. 4.—Although under $1,000 bond on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal wounding of 16-year-old George Stipanovich last September 24, Policeman E. C. Mansfield was still patrolling his "beat" today.

Mansfield was arrested last year on an affidavit filed by Samuel Stipanovich, father of the dead youth. He pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the grand jury.

Young Stipanovich was killed with a bullet fired by Mansfield while the latter and another policeman were chasing a gang of youths who were said to have been frightening motorists.

BUSINESS MAN DIES

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—Funeral arrangements are being made here today for Horace Willoughby, 55, president and general manager of the Columbus office of the Crane Company, a national corporation, following his death late last night. His death was said to have been caused by heart trouble.

CHAPTER XLVI
Chatty had some encouragement in her effort to keep her promise and reorganize her nature; to make herself over from a born talking machine into a real business woman, who doesn't talk any more than she expects to be talked out.
Her mother noticed the difference almost at once.
"I declare, Chatty," she began, "Chatty had been at work a week or so, 'I don't know what's come over you! You used to come and tell me everything about an office, and now you never say a 'tag'!"
"I'm trying not to gossip," explained Chatty. "I don't mean to be uncommunicative, mother, dear, but if I talk to you about office gossip I'm apt to talk elsewhere, and I said I wouldn't."
"Well, that's fine! I didn't know it was at the bottom of it!" Her mother sighed in relief. "I always did you talk too much."
Chatty was up in arms on the instant. It was one thing to tell yourself at you must keep a promise, and lie another to be blamed for talking too much by your mother! "I never did!" Chatty assured her. "That was just your imagination. But things happened in the office which made it seem as if I d. I am back on a promise that I won't even give anyone reason to think I talk—even if I never really d."
It was a pretty lame defense, but the best Chatty could think of at the moment.
Her mother smiled wisely and did nothing, being a wise mother. Billie and Winnie both noted that Chatty was not living up to her promise. Billie said little about it, but a pat on the arm, a wise smile, a friendly gesture, meant much to Billie. Chatty still felt uncomfortable when she remembered that she knew things about George which Billie didn't know; that she talked about Billie, and Billie didn't know it.
She felt uncomfortable, always, when keeping anything to herself, but she stuck to her plan to be silent, even if it was hard.
Winnie laughed at her. "I declare, you are getting so oyster-tough it's hard to get a 'yes' or a 'no' out of you. But maybe you'll answer this: If I ask you to come tonight to meet Bryant and Jim, will you come?"
Chatty smiled, in spite of herself. Her dull ache in her heart needed easing. Bryant—well, Bryant was sweet, even if he was dangerous, and long repression of talk had made Chatty dull.
"Yes, I'll come," she answered.
It was a happy party. Pud wasn't all on to bring alcohol. Bryant brought it with him. The apartment was provided with plenty of ranges, lemons, ginger ale, seltzer, but the raw taste of the "cooked" pirts be disguised in as many ways as possible. As usual, there was nothing to eat.
And as usual, there was a lot of very frank necking. Jim and Winnie kissed as unconsciously of observation as if alone. Bryant was a overing bee, with Chatty's lips or cheek or neck as the flower.
It was late in the evening before Bryant made the suggestion for which Chatty had been hoping. Let's all take a ride and cool off!" "Eats?" suggested Winnie.
"Why eat? You drink to kill care, when you eat to kill the booze, and then you go to sleep to forget the ate! Silly!" answered Bryant, and hey all laughed as if he had said something really funny!
Jim had his own car—which Chatty knew in advance, otherwise he wouldn't have wanted to ride—so she was alone with Bryant. It was some time since she had ridden with him, and to her amazement, and a little to her consternation, she found herself hardly able to wait until he got to a dark road, and stopped the car. For Chatty knew that inside she was hoping for a recurrence of the miracle, in which Bryant, kissing her, became David—David, who had not kissed for months. They had to wait a moment for a battered car to pass. It went swiftly by, its headlights blinding on her face.

The miracle refused to happen. When Bryant hugged her to him and pressed his lips hotly to hers, it was only Bryant—Bryant, too well made up, too carefully groomed, too odorous of perfume to seem like David.
Chatty sighed, after half an hour. It wouldn't work. She couldn't kiss vicariously by planning it, evidently.
"I—I guess we better go home!" she said at last, wearily.
"Well, if you say so—but before we do, tell me the latest scandal!" suggested Bryant. "I haven't heard any dirt about any one for days!"
"I don't know any!" answered Chatty.
"You said it! You sure have changed, sweetness! And while you haven't so much to say, I don't know but what that's nicer!"
Chatty smiled, then frowned, as he added: "Leaves your mouth freer for kisses!"
But in spite of that last remark, Chatty was pleased with her evening. She had been careful with her drink, she had not talked, and Bryant had praised her for failure to gossip.
That night, almost asleep, a great thought flashed across her mind.
"If I've really stopped gossiping, why—why—why the things about me that made David give me up—are gone! Oh, if he knew it, would he take me back?"
She lay awake for a delicious hour, pondering it, hoping for it, planning to make it come true.
At ten minutes of three the next day, Chatty got excused from the office for an hour. It was the least busy part of the day, and Lola was willing to relieve her at the switch-board. She had stayed in, and gone without lunch, in order to get the hour, just before the bank closed for the day.

At five minutes of three she knocked on David's door in the Midas bank.
At four minutes of three she sat in a chair before his desk, her heart beating madly, her face smiling, but a little wistful, as she looked at the man who occupied her thoughts.
"This is an unexpected pleasure," began David. "More advice, Miss Chatterton?"
Chatty sat silent for a moment, gathering her courage. Then she asked:
"Would it hurt you very much to call me Chatty, like you did—once?"
David reddened. He did not expect anything so direct. But he recovered himself immediately.
"Why, no Chatty, it wouldn't hurt me. But this is a business office. In it I transact business. I don't call clients by their first names."
"But it's three o'clock, and the bank is closed!" declared Chatty, triumphantly. "Please, Dave."
"All right—Chatty!" David smiled at her. "Now what can I do for you?"
"Listen to me a minute!" she answered. Then she told him all that she had done. How she had taken his advice and gone to Mr. Van Nuyss—how she had suddenly corrected herself when the old habit reasserted itself and she had begun to exaggerate; how she had received her job back, the promises

TEACHERS ATTEND
OPENING MEETING

Xenia Township teachers held their first meeting of the year at the township office last Friday afternoon, with Miss Ray presiding, as president.
Interesting reports were given on the "Aims and the Standards of Achievement in Reading," by Miss Matthews, Mr. Cavendar, Mrs. Faye Murry, Mrs. Thelma Spahr, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hampton.
This was followed by brief reports of the progress made in the different schools during the month and by a general discussion of various methods and devices used in the teaching of reading.

FAMILY NOTES
LIVESTOCK DAY
The tenth hour of the tenth day of the tenth month is the time for the fall Livestock Day at the Ohio Experiment Station, at Wooster as announced by Paul Gerlaugh, chief in animal industry.
At this time 100 head of yearling steers will make a progress report of their summer's work. While the test on the cattle will not close until November the results of one hundred and twelve days in the feed lot will be available on October 10.
Thirty-five head of Shorthorns are obtaining additional information on dry lot feeding as compared with feeding on bluegrass pasture. A year ago the cattle that were fed on pasture made more economical gains than the cattle fed in the barn. This year a third lot has an opportunity to run in an outside lot where no grass is available to see whether the advantage of being outside is a factor in making gains.
Four lots of yearling steers, are comparing linseed meal and cottonseed meal at the rates of one and two pounds per steer daily. If it is possible to substitute a pound of shelled corn for one pound of protein concentrate in the ration a material saving in feed cost will result to the feeder.
Market values on cattle are more difficult to understand during the fall season than at any other time of year. Representatives from Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and Buffalo markets will be on hand Livestock Day to place values on the various lots of cattle, and to explain conditions on the three markets at that time.
Thirty-five lots of pigs will show results of various tests which have been conducted by W. L.

Members of the committee have asked four other workers from other churches to assist them in leading the study groups. Miss Quinn said that the class work would soon begin. The classes will be held for six weeks and the same course of Bible truth will be studied in the various groups.

Soft, wavy hair!

The modern sculptured bobs do wonders to bring out your personality. But like other present-day modes of arranging the hair, they call attention to it. That's why it's so important nowadays to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant. The easiest and quickest way to give new lustre and color to hair, which has begun to look dull and lifeless, is with Danderine. And it makes the hair softer, easier to arrange; holds it in place.

SON ATTEMPTS TO SACRIFICE FOR DAD

IRONTON, O., Oct. 4.—The trial of Sherman Cole, 42, and his son, Robert, 19, for the murder of Jacob Woolum, 68, went forward in common pleas court here today despite a dramatic attempt to stop it yesterday.

The son asked permission to plead guilty to a charge of manslaughter so that his father might go free.

Father is needed at home," the boy pleaded, "to look after three infants and three other children."

Though both the father and son deny any knowledge of the killing of Woolum, he offered to sacrifice himself before the tribunal of justice.

THREE TENANTS ARE SEEKING SITES FOR STORE LOCATIONS

New locations are being sought for three stores affected by the lease of the Clara Allen building on S. Detroit St. to the S. S. Kresge Co., Detroit, Mich., for a period of thirty years.

The "Smoke House," a cigar store which has been operated by William Fletcher at its present location for the last four years, has no lease, while the lease of the L. A. Wagner jewelry store expires January 1, 1930 and that of the Arrow Shoe Co. January 1, 1931.

The Kresge Co. lease becomes effective January 1, 1931 or sooner if the firm receives written notice that the three-story brick building has been vacated by its present tenants.

The room in which the "Smoke House" is now located has been occupied as a cigar store for nearly fifty years. L. A. Wagner has consigned location for four years. Each of the three tenants is expected to seek new locations in Xenia but the shoe store, it is understood, may continue to operate where it is now located until its lease expires.

REPORT COSTES AND COMPANION FOUND

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Unconfirmed reports received here from Moscow today stated that Dinedonne Costes and Maurice Bellonte, the French fliers missing on their attempt to fly across Siberia from Paris, had landed at Beklemishevo, Siberia, 60 miles west of Chita, Sunday.

A similar report received in Moscow Wednesday had stated that the fliers had flown over the same place late Sunday. This report, also unconfirmed, had been discredited by Soviet authorities who asserted Costes had agreed before the start of his flight not to fly beyond Irkutsk.

CHINA'S "FAMINE"

The American Red Cross has officially decided against entering upon famine relief in China, at this time. This decision has been arrived at after a thorough survey of the China field by a commission appointed by the society. The commission found that the widespread destitution existing in China is due less to natural causes than to the indifference of greedy and ruthless overlords to the welfare of their people. That the commission is convinced that this condition would be made worse rather than better by outside charity is evident from its statement that:

"Chinese leaders would no doubt be more thought to the removal of the causes which impoverish their people and bring on such tragedies if they realized the necessity of assuming full responsibility for resulting relief needs. Any acceptance of that responsibility by foreign agencies cannot but retard this all-important result."

The facts discovered by this survey were outlined in these columns at the time the appointment of the commission was announced. They are familiar to all who know China, as it is and as it has been for a great many years. The Free Press also made bold to predict that the American Red Cross would come to the conclusion to which it now has come, viz., that the only permanent remedy for the consequences of misgovernment is to compel those guilty of it to assume the undivided responsibility for its effect on the governed.

What China is suffering from is less crop famine than an famine among its rulers. American funds sent to China to relieve distress caused by the rapacity of these rulers encourages the latter by protecting them in a measure from the just vengeance of those whom they plunder. Americans are notoriously freehearted and soft-hearted; but they have better use for their charity than exporting it to China, where it is made the excuse for delaying reforms that must be made before China can lay claim to being self-sufficient.

NEW YORK — Seven months ago when President Coolidge signed the Jones Five-and-Ten Law, with its heavy penalties for those detected totin' likker, New Yorkers looked at each other and said: "Where is this thing to end, and when it does end, which end will it end at?" That was last March — one of Cal's last official facts — and here it is autumn, without the law causing a single trial, so far, in Manhattan. "I'm an old man," said Mark Twain, "and I've known many troubles; but most of them never happened."

JIMMY'S TROUBLE — "You see," says Mayor Walker, "I didn't start the game right. I ought to have grown whiskers and served tea and gone around with an air as if the camp chairs had just been folded up and called for and then nobody would have called me a playboy. I've had a lot of fun. The trouble is, I haven't had as much as I get credit for or the blame for. That's where MY kick comes."

CAR SCENE — I encountered my gentleman, blue-shirted and homeward bound on an open Broadway trolley car — a capable giant who having contributed worth-while toil in the hours intervening since sun-up, was at peace with all the world. He was conversing with a companion, apparently oblivious of the embarrassed little woman in faded black who had just seated herself beside him, unprovided with car-

LIFE IN TOPEKA AND ELSEWHERE

Jay House, Philadelphia newspaper columnist, visiting the home folks in Kansas, says he was served liquor in 13 or 14 of the homes in Topeka. And they are "the best people in town," he says. House says that in Topeka there are four drinking parties to the city block every night. He estimates drinking among Topeka women has increased 1,000 per cent in 20 years. Doubtless Mr. House likes his little joke and exaggerates a bit. But his observations are interesting if only half true. Even quite ardent drys will probably admit that house to house drinking was not quite so common, 20 or even 10 years ago.

WIGS AND FLAPPERS

Prof. A. M. Low, brilliant British scientist, predicts that in 2,000 years the most advanced flapper of the day may wear thick glasses, false teeth and a wig. But she will be so intelligent these things won't be held against her. We need not be so far from that age now. If girls, resisting study and refusing to go to college, only knew it, they would be vastly more popular if they were less dumb. And this is true despite the traditional success of the beautiful but dumb. After all, brains help.

A NEWSPAPER STORY

Trained newspaper reporters spend hours and days in running down rumor, sifting stories and arriving at facts. When the facts are printed there is always someone to say: "It's only a newspaper story." Folks seem to be getting into the bad habit of automatically discrediting the printed word. On the other hand, the most careless gossip peddler and dealer in scandal is sure of a ready and sympathetic ear. The story is repeated and waxed fat by repetition. Everybody believes it. "They say" steals the stamp of truth, while "I read" languishes without believers. This is a queer, unforfeitable and unfounded reversal of form. The printed word is the result of an honest attempt to arrive at the accuracy. "They say" carries all the weight of the prattle of parrots.

PROGRESS IN AVIATION ASCRIBED TO FEDERAL ACTIVITIES

By DAVID S. INGALLS
Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics.

(David S. Ingalls was born in 1890. He was a graduate of Yale university and Harvard Law school. During the World War he joined the Yale aerial unit at the age of 18 and was attached to the British squadron. For several years he practiced law in Cleveland, O. Last spring he was appointed assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics by President Hoover. He holds the British Flying Cross, the navy's Distinguished Service Medal and the Navy Cross.)

The great advances made by aviation in the past few years are due to activities of the government since the World War.

At the present time I fly, first from a sense of duty; second, from a conviction that flying is the quickest and least obnoxious method of transportation; and third, from a love of flying.

What great advances were made during the world war when sets of aeronautical engineers vied with one another to produce aircraft more and more efficient, urged on by the fact that life lay for their fellow citizens in the superiority of their article. But even so, comparison of the present-day plane with that of the wartime plane leads us to appreciate a great peace-time development of aviation.

Much is due, to be sure, to Lindbergh and his historic flight, as well as the creditable feats of the air that have been accomplished in recent years, but more is due to our government in the development of aviation from a very chaotic state immediately after the war to a solid, thriving industry and method of transportation.

Far greater are we indebted to the wise men of the Morrow board which in 1925 and 1926 outlined the policies that should govern commercial aviation in this country. Compliance with the board's recommendations has resulted most favorably for our country commercially and as a matter of national defense.

Thanks to the great development of aviation in this and in other countries it no longer takes men of extraordinary skill, ability and courage to pilot an airplane. Though not fool proof, the plane of today is far easier to fly than that of the past, and the average person with normal physique and good eyesight should have no particular difficulties in piloting a plane, and once learned, there is probably no more fascinating and entrancing sport in the world and few that have once started have given it up.

As a matter of fact, one of the fortunate things about the situation at present of airplane travel is that, taking it altogether the vehicle itself, the airplane and the engine, has been developed far further than the incidental matters such as airports, air routes, etc. The main thing, in other words, is really an accomplished fact. The development of airports, air routes and so on, is after all, though costly as a matter of time, something that is perfectly sure to come.

The Idaho lawmaker omitted to mention that Alexander Legge, under whose management, as head of the International, so handsome an advance in the company's stock was scored, is now at the head of the federal farm board, trying to find means of improving agricul-

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

It is so very true, that sometimes insignificant, unimportant matters can bring about great phenomena. Even world history is affected by comparatively insignificant things.

I wonder now many of you realize that Columbus's voyage of discovery was probably motivated, at least in part, by a shortage of drugs to propound beauty aids as well as cosmetics? Of course there was a need for other drugs, spices and various other commodities obtainable in India and important to the trade, but it is reasonable to suppose, knowing women, that when a shortage threatened for the 15th century dressing table there was much pressure brought to bear. Isabelle undoubtedly had visions of great conquests for Spain, but I think we are justified in suspecting that this question of personal beautification may have made her more than ever willing to aid this brave adventurer.

For beauty was in its early heyday then. Hours and hours were spent gazing into the mirror, the while lady applied the most authentic beauty methods of the day. Perfume, because of the great demand for it, became one of the greatest industries of Italy. France shortly carried this honor away from Italian shores and has maintained this leadership up until the present. Every woman in those times kept herself supplied with hair dyes, lip tints, special soaps for her hair and body, and some very elegant ladies even indulged in milk and champagne baths. Those were luxurious days.

Perhaps the whole spirit of the time is best reflected in the many adventures, even before the famous Ponce de Leon, who, inspired by their womenfolk, sought in the new world, a mysterious magic which brought eternal life. Eternal youth. How little humanity has changed, despite our great discoveries and developments. Even in this age of skepticism I firmly believe that one could get up a pilgrimage to any spot which boasted a youth-giving, life-elongating fountain!

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Problems in economics belong on the puzzle page. Take agricultural troubles. The farmer groans that he is in desperate straits because the high protective tariff compels him to foot such awful bills for everything he has to buy; whereas he, under-protected, must content himself with the lowest kind of prices for what he has to sell.

He mentions harvesters and other machinery—dire necessities, to enable him to produce at all—as among the essentials which cost him like sixty, while he is forced to take anything he can get for the crops he raises.

Senator Furnifold M. Simmons of North Carolina, a great tariff authority, bears him out in this complaint. "The implement industry," says the senator, "is the one industry in America that has managed to maintain its prices at or near war level, with the prices of almost everything else coming down." Yet, on investigation, we discover that farm machinery is entirely unprotected. It is on the free list.

Solve that one. Senator William E. Borah of Idaho was discussing the subject recently. "For every $1,000 invested on Jan. 1, 1920, in the capital stock of the International Harvester company," he said, "the today's combined amount of dividends paid on that stock, plus the increase in the market value of the stock as of May 11, 1923, would amount to $5,400 plus interest on the dividends paid since 1920."

"This is the International Harvester company dealing directly with the American farmer. At a time when the latter's costs are increasing and his income decreasing, the value of the things which he has to buy, in order to produce, is raised to this enormous extent."

The Idaho lawmaker omitted to mention that Alexander Legge, under whose management, as head of the International, so handsome an advance in the company's stock was scored, is now at the head of the federal farm board, trying to find means of improving agricul-

Diet and Health

Does Olive Oil Have Any Oil or Medicinal Value? How can its purity be tested in the home? "H."

Olive oil, as its name implies, is an oil obtained from the olive. It has no medicinal value. It will NOT dissolve gallstones; nor will any other oil, for that matter. Notice I put that not in capitals. Recently I had a letter asking me to give my olive oil treatment for gallstones that the writer cut out but has lost! If it was my article she was referring to, she hadn't read it carefully. The "stones" which will be passed by anyone after consuming any food, but in large quantities, are nothing but soap concretions made from the excess oil and the alkali bile in the intestines and can be demonstrated as such, if they will melt.

Olive oil is liked for its characteristic flavor, but as far as its food value is concerned, it has no other advantage over other vegetable oils. All edible oils add richness and high energy value to the food, for they average 100 calories to the tablespoonful. For instance, your salad dressing may come to 200 to 300 calories, while your salad—say, of lettuce—can be composed of as much as one-quarter pound of the leaves—this makes a good sized salad—and only 20 C! This point is to be thought of by those who are overweight and have to limit their calories.

The testings of any oils are very complicated chemical and physical methods, which can be done only in a chemical laboratory, H. As for home testing of olive oil, the only thing you can depend on is its characteristic flavor. The adulterants of olive oil are usually cheaper vegetable oils, but these would not alter the food value of the mixture in any way.

We have a pamphlet on Kidney and Bladder Disorders, and an article on stones, which can be obtained by following column rules.

"In one of my breasts there seems to be a lump which is not painful at all. Am afraid to see a doctor for fear he might say I need to be operated on, as that is about the only thing a doctor thinks of nowadays. Is there anything you could advise me to do?" MRS. G.

Certainly, every doctor thinks of an operation for a lump in the breast that isn't due to an acute inflammation. Most of the lumps which you could only realize how unintelligent it is not to go to a doctor because you fear he might advise an operation! You don't have to submit to an operation if you don't want to even if you need it; you can let the lump go on until, perhaps, it develops into a cancer, and reaches the inoperable stage, if you prefer!

Any lump in the breast had best be removed unless it is due to an acute inflammatory condition when other treatments are remedial. If there is no cancerous change now, the operation will be very slight and leave practically no scar. If you wait until later, when there is a cancerous change, then your whole breast will have to be removed, with some of the chest muscles, and all the glands under the arm. A very mutilating operation.

Not all lumps in the breast are cancerous, by any means, but the consensus of opinions is that all non-inflammatory lumps should be removed on account of cancer possibilities. Not having any pain does not mean there are no cancer possibilities. It is really unfortunate that these potentially cancerous lumps are not more often associated with pain. (They are associated with a good deal of pain later on.)

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

My laundress called me up the other day and sobbingly told me she could not come to work for some time as she was ill from worry and had to go away for a rest.

It was all on account of her daughter, she said. The mother had worked hard at washing and scrubbing to give her girls—who were ambitious—a good education. Their father wasn't interested. He thought they should get out and work as soon as they were old enough to do so, and the older one had one year of college.

This year the younger one had decided she, too, would like to go to school, and she had her trunk all packed to go, when the boy friend persuaded her to marry him. They went off for a week-end "visit" and came back to announce that they were married.

"He's a nice boy," sobbed Rosie over the phone, "and he says he'll take care of Violet, but I can't help worrying for fear she'll have to go through what I did." Now we parents know that you young people didn't ask to be brought into the world (neither did we) and that you don't owe us a thing on that score. But we also know that we've treated you pretty decently since then—most of us—and done everything we could to make life pleasant.

You've taken it all, too, so don't you think you owe us an even break? We usually consult you, or at least tell you, if we are planning any big move that will mean a difference in your lives. Why not let us in on your wedding plans? Suppose we object to the boy friend? We MIGHT be right about him, you know, and as you will probably be married a long time when you DO marry, maybe you could afford to wait a little while so as to be SURE you've picked the right one.

MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl 17 years old and am deeply in love with a boy one year my junior. He loves me very much.

Yes, you could be married in the town you speak of, and you would probably need two witnesses, but don't do it, dear. Wait a little while to see if you can't get your parents' consent to marry at home. You wouldn't want your mother to have a nervous breakdown, would you, an account of such a shock? You know it means that you will leave home never to return save as a visitor, and that means a big change in your parents' life and a loss.

Think how you would feel if your mother or father went away without letting you know they were going, and with someone whom you disliked. Wouldn't it be a shock? Well, you put them in that position when you run off and get married.

After the Ball

"Of all the dances I have ever seen, today's was the prettiest one," said Buttercup, their slightest "I should love to dance, too. I wish that I could fly away like the rest of you, but from daylight to dark I am here in the spot where I was born and the only time I even move is when the kind winds rock me gently to and fro. Being a flower has its disadvantages."

"Never mind, Buttercup, dear," said Sir Butterfly, "even if you can't go to your friends, your friends will all come to you, and you make them all very happy by being just your own bright cheery self. You are so dependable, and your friends always know where they can find you."

"Which counts for a great deal!" remarked Peter. "I have found that out."

"What nice things you are both saying to me," said Buttercup, in a pleased tone. "I am downright ashamed of myself. What? Must you go so soon?"

Buttercup asked the question because Sir Butterfly was already waving his wings, as he always did just before ready to sail.

"To tell you the truth," said he, "I am awfully tired. I practiced for days to be sure of my movements this afternoon, and today's performance was no easy matter. I can tell you, I feel like taking a nap, and I see a splendid spot over there in the grass, right by the edge of the brook, under the weeping willow. Does it look comfy to you, boy?"

"It looks as cool and pleasant as can be," declared Peter, and although I have enjoyed it immensely here with Buttercup, I think we had better go over to the place you have chosen. If you are going to sleep, perhaps Buttercup would like to take a doze herself."

"Now that you speak of it, I am drowsy," said the flower. "Do have a drink of buttercup wine before you leave. All my friends say I am an expert at making it."

"You are that," my dear Sir Butterfly, his tongue trembling with eagerness, "and there isn't a bit of doubt but that the boy will agree with me."

Peter had rather a hard time of it, trying to drink from the buttercup's bowl. He wasn't used to it, you see. But Sir Butterfly unrolled his long, slim, tube-like tongue, and thrust it deep into the bowl and drank of the delicious fluid that the Buttercup offered him. The boy did manage to get enough to know that it tasted good, and he thanked Buttercup heartily as he hopped upon the back of his waiting steed.

SPORT SNAP SHOT

FRAMED
by Phil

Xenia radio fans who tuned in on the scrap between Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion, and Vince Dundee in which the one and only Jack Dempsey made his bow as a fistie promoter at Chicago Wednesday night, heard the one and only Graham McNamee cross-examine the former heavyweight champion of the world on the possibility of his return to the ring.

"Why bring that up?" answered the one-time mauler good-naturedly in response to the announcer's question of whether he would ever fight again, adding, moreover, that "I like fighting, but I like promoting, too."

Jack went on record that he had found a liking for the executive side of the boxing game and that promoting holds more appeal for him. He indicated that he would not re-enter the ring again unless he goes broke as a promoter, a possibility that seems far distant judging from the way his first snow was patronized.

Taking time out to confess that the program was being sponsored by the Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers, Graham inquired of Jack what he thought of Jack Sharkey's recent decisive victory over Tommy Loughran.

Jack replied that the quick knockout did not come as a great surprise to him. Speaking from the standpoint of his own experience Dempsey admitted that Sharkey possessed real inside information on the art of giving a take.

Dempsey's wife, the former Estelle Taylor, who also spoke a few words to listening fight fans, expressed satisfaction that her famous husband had turned promoter, explaining that it was a relief not to be listening in over a radio on a fight in which Jack was participating and worrying about the outcome.

Jack also expressed the hope that he might stage a heavyweight tournament in the near future to decide the heavyweight title.

The absurdity of the unusually long playing season in the major baseball leagues this season has finally made its impression on the big chiefs, who have announced the welcome decision to shorten the playing season in 1930.

The little interest being manifest at present in the league games, which are meaningless as far as the standings of the contending teams are concerned, influenced the decision. Attendance has fallen off in every city with the possible exception of Chicago and Philadelphia.

For example, the Yankees, always a great drawing card in any city, have been playing games before crowds of less than 500 paid admissions. At Cincinnati a few days ago the stands on one occasion contained less than 300 paying customers.

Little importance is attached to the remaining games on the schedule and it is small wonder that the fans take slight interest in baseball, other than to watch the sport columns for news devoted to the coming world series.

The league magnates naturally enough are worried and have decided to try to eliminate the cause of this apparent apathy on the part of fans.

It is likely that the 1930 baseball season will be shortened two or three weeks in order that it will be all over by the time the first big football date—the first Saturday in October—rolls around and attention of the public is diverted from the diamond to the gridiron.

BOWLING

The champion Greene County Lumber Co. retained exclusive possession of first place in the Recreation League by winning two out of three games from the Arch-O-Pedic Shoes in a league bowling match Thursday night. One league record was broken when "Dinky" Moore, member of the losing quintet, rolled 232, bettering the former league mark for high individual game held jointly by L. McCoy and Malavazos, by one pin. Moore had a series of 590. Peterson led the winners with 578.

In a City League match earlier in the evening the Beckett Auto Co. won the odd game in three from the Hoover and Allison Co. Co., member of the H. and A. team, bettered the league record for high individual game established by Purdon by thirteen pins when he rolled 248 his last game. Box scores:

RESERVES MEET RUNNERS-UP IN NATIONAL TOURNAMENT SUNDAY

Reserves hope to wind up a successful season in a successful manner in the final game with the famous Shroyer Cubs of Dayton Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

Possibly, in booking the Cubs, the Reserves have bitten off a little more than they can masticate, but the game will give Xenia fans an

GREENE COUNTY BOY SCOUT TROOPS WILL BE INSPECTED SOON

District Scout commissioners of each county comprising Tecumseh Council are endeavoring to inspect all troops within their jurisdiction before Thanksgiving Day.

A program of inspection for Greene County has been arranged tentatively so that S. N. McClellan, Xenia, district commissioner for Greene County district, and Homer T. Gratz, field executive, may jointly visit the nine troops in this county between October 16 and November 7.

Dates for the inspection of troops in Greene County are announced as follows:

Troop No. 40, East High School, Wednesday, October 16 at 7:30. (E. A. Roberts, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 41, Xenia, at Scout Cabin, Thursday, October 24 at 7:30. (R. H. Kingsbury, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 42, Jamestown, (no date assigned); Troop No. 43, Xenia, Monday, October 28 at 7:30. (D. C. Anderson, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 45, Xenia, at Scout Cabin Friday, November 1 at 7:30. (Ernest Blackburn, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 53, New Burlington—T. C. Haydock, Scoutmaster. (no date assigned); Troop No. 54, Osborn, Wednesday, Oct. 23, 7:30. (C. F. Bay, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 56, Yellow Springs, Thursday, November 14 at 7:30. (Merrill Dawson, Scoutmaster); Troop No. 62, O. S. and S. O. Home, Thursday, November 7, 7:30. (E. L. Blackburn, Scoutmaster).

Inspections are to be made with the thought of helping the Scoutmasters and when possible, making valuable suggestions. It is suggested that on inspection nights all troop committeemen be present so that the inspecting officer may confer with them and explain some of the new plans, making sure that each member has a definite task.

IMPERIALS TO OPEN AGAINST TIPP CITY MERCHANTS SUNDAY

Imperials football eleven, newly organized independent Xenia team, will open its 1929 gridiron season against the Tipp City Merchants Sunday afternoon at Tippecanoe City. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

Tipp City will have the psychological advantage of having played one game as the Merchants opened their season auspiciously last Sunday, defeating St. Marys, 12 to 0.

Included in the Tipp lineup will be Butch Myers, Bob Drummer, former Beaver star of Dayton, and other well known players.

The Imperials have indulged in several workouts, of which two have been of strenuous character, in preparation for the opener.

Members of the local squad expecting to play Sunday are requested to be at Washington Park at 7:30 o'clock Friday night. The squad will meet at the Geyer book store at 12:15 p. m. Sunday and will leave for Tipp City at that time.

"KONJOLA GAVE ME HEALTH AFTER ALL ELSE HAD FAILED"

Former Sufferer Relieved of Stomach Trouble And Rheumatism; Says Medicine Will Do For Others As It Did For Him.

"Konjola gave me health after all else had failed," said Mr. E. W. Haley, Jefferson, Ohio. "The rheumatic pains were so severe that it was hard for me to do anything. I was bothered some with kidney trouble—making me rise during the night. Stomach disorders added their misery. Gas and bloating and a general soreness in the pit of my stomach were with me constantly.

"Konjola proved to be the medicine that I always needed. It went right to work. First my kidneys responded to the treatment. Then my stomach began to function normally and today I can eat anything I want. Lately the rheumatic pains vanished. Konjola was certainly a blessing to me and I endorse it to all who suffer as I once did."

opportunity of seeing the team that fought its way to the finals of the national amateur baseball tournament a week ago only to lose out to Pleasant Ridge of Cincinnati in the final three-game series.

With its pitching ace, Charley Maxton, on the hill, the Reserves, however, are counting on putting up a better game than the Cubs probably bargain for.

Reserves are bringing to a close one of the best seasons in the club's history. Twenty games have been won against three defeats. The only team which has been able to beat the Reserves this season is the American Railway Express nine of Dayton. This team turned the trick three times.

SCOUT DISTRICT TO PLAN ACHIEVEMENT ROUND-UP AT MEET

Plans for an "Achievement Round-up" will be discussed at a meeting of the Greene County district Scout committee at Xenia Central High School Monday night, October 7 at 7 o'clock.

At 8 o'clock the same evening, there will be a board of review for all of the approximately 150 Scouts of Greene County and Court of Honor dates will be announced also that evening.

Ranks above the tenderfoot class must go before the board of review and no Scout is eligible to appear before the Court of Honor until he has passed by this board.

A feature of the proposed "Achievement Round-up" is that during a designated period of perhaps six weeks each Scout will strive to perfect himself or achieve something worth while that he has heretofore not attained.

The idea is expected to be extended to embrace the entire Tecumseh Council, in which event nearly 1500 Scouts would interest themselves in becoming more proficient in some endeavor.

CENTRAL OPERETTA PLANNED HERE SOON

Personnel of the cast selected for presentation of the operetta, "Old Louisiana," by the comedienne and Girls' Glee Clubs Xenia Central High School in the B. Elwell Auditorium November 1, is being announced.

Miss Sarah Davidson, senior, chosen for the part of "Rose Parson," will have the leading feminine role. John Collins will play opposite her as "Richard St. John." These two students are talented singers and have had previous experience in dramatic productions. Miss Davidson played the role in dramatic art plays last year while Mr. Collins was leading in last year's glee club performance. Both were members of a cast for the junior class play year ago.

The remainder of the cast includes: Bernice Bath as "Martha"; Leona LeSourd as "Judy"; Charles as "Monty Gray"; Lester as "Scudder"; Ronald Atkin as "Timms"; Harold Bull as "Larkin"; Robert Randall as "Old d." Students for the parts of the Argus De la Tour, Sheriff McDonough and Pilot Farley have not been named.

"In Old Louisiana," which will be presented under the direction of William Hugh Miller, musical director in the Xenia public schools, a musical comedy in three acts. Rose and Richard fall in love in each other and after a few shapshots are married. There is also pretty love affair between Richard's sister, Martha, and his friend, Gray, running through the play. Comedy scenes are provided. Old Ned and his wife, Judy, are servants of Pilot Farley. Proceeds of the production will be used to help pay for a piano purchased last year. Tickets will be sold in the Xenia public schools during the next two weeks, after which the seat sale will commence. Lower floor seats will cost 25 cents, and balcony seats, 35 cents. Seats may be reserved at the drug store after October 28.

All Scouts and Scout leaders of cuneish Council, which encompasses Greene County, are invited attending Ohio State University's football game with Wittenberg College to be played at the university stadium at Columbus Tuesday, October 5.

A complete uniform will serve as pass into the stadium for the outs. Adults who accompany the outs will also be admitted free providing they enter the gate with their own group of Scouts.

All Scouts should report at the 11th end of the stadium not later than 12 o'clock. Instructions for a grand entry will be given at that time.

Funeral services for Lewis Swartz, 80, who died at 7:15 o'clock Wednesday night at his home in Fairfield, will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the residence and at 2:30 o'clock at the McKinley Church of Brethren. Interment will be in Ft. McKinley Cemetery.

TRUCK DRIVER HELD FOLLOWING BATTLE WITH AUTHORITIES

M. O. Devers, home at large, is held in the County Jail and faces probable charges of driving a truck without a tail light and resisting an officer, following an encounter with Sheriff Ohmer Tate and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, in which he came out second best about 10 p. m. Thursday.

The officers had been summoned to a point on the Dayton Pike where an auto being driven toward Dayton by William Hopping, Dayton, had left the road and gone into a ditch.

Shortly afterward a truck driven by Devers came by and the officers, observing that it was not equipped with a tail light, gave the driver a citation to appear in Probate Court.

Devers, authorities say, became angered and showed resistance. Despite the fact he was outnumbered two to one and also that he was handicapped by a wooden leg and was partly paralyzed, Devers gave a good account of himself, but finally lost the decision on points.

Sheriff Tate, however, had a few scratches to show for the battle before his adversary was subdued. Devers and Hopping were locked up over night. Hopping, who said he was returning home after attending a party in Xenia, will be charged with intoxication or operating an auto while intoxicated, the decision resting with Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall.

BLAST CAUSES FIRE THAT PARTLY RUINS E. THIRD ST. HOUSE

Damage estimated at from $500 to $1,000 was caused by fire which partly destroyed a one-story, seven-room, frame residence owned by Henry W. Gales, colored laborer, at 816 E. Third St., at 4:11 p. m. Thursday. Loss on building and contents is believed covered by insurance.

Firemen learned that the blaze followed an explosion of a coal oil stove in the kitchen while the family was away. Only the prompt arrival of firemen saved the dwelling from complete destruction.

The front part of the house was gutted by the flames and although the fire had obtained considerable headway, firemen soon had it under control. Part of the contents was saved.

The explosion occurred shortly after the family had left the residence.

OFFERED TO WOMEN BY COLUMBUS STORE

One of Antioch College's principal industrial projects, Antioch shoes for women, designed by the college after research work and experimentation, are being introduced in Columbus this week.

A separate department for handling them has been established by the F. and R. Lazarus and Co.

Miss Ruth Leibig, representing Antioch College, is in Columbus to explain to Columbus women the value of the Antioch shoe.

The Antioch Shoe Project, now under the direction of Lloyd Snook, has made a study of women's foot and footwear, trying with the cooperation of orthopedists, last makers, shoe manufacturers and others, to develop attractive health shoes for women.

The results have been extremely encouraging and the shoes are on sale in large cities.

This project, it is explained by President Arthur E. Morgan, is one of several industries, wholly or partially managed by faculty members of students, which help to keep such departments as engineering and business in touch with the actual professional and industrial life of the times.

The oldest child is 11.

TESTIMONY OF A COLLEGE BOY

A college boy, when asked what he derived from a service of worship, said: "One thing I know—the worship service has been the directive force in my life. When I am in a low level, it stimulates me, as it lifts me to a level where it is easy and a joy to believe in God."

The enrichment of life comes in no other way than by cultivating and reconstructing personality. This enriching experience can be attained through learning the art of worship.

These four youths, probably from 12 to 15 years of age, were taken captive in Judah by Nebuchadnezzar and were carried off to Babylon to serve as hostages for that monarch; they were young noblemen, handsome in appearance, with no physical blemishes, sprightly in bearing and they were at once selected to be trained for service, learning the Chaldean language, gaining a knowledge of Chaldean science and instructed in their prospective duties at the court. They were to be supplied with special food and wine such as the king had.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Market at King

W. H. Tilford, Pastor

It is a mark of distinctive judgment when a person is wise enough to apportion his time so that he attends church regularly. This church offers the opportunity of performing the duty of church attendance, interestingly and pleasantly.

9:15 a. m. Sunday School. Graded school with efficient teachers.

10:35 a. m. Morning worship. A hour of devotion with inspiration. Sermon theme: "Straightway." Miss Ruth Alexander will sing. Object lesson for children's division. 7:30 p. m. Union services Second U. P. Church. Rev. W. W. Foust will preach.

A pleasant Sunday evening church will do you good.

which violate moral and Christian principles? Why?

4. How much is involved in keeping fit?

5. What has keeping fit to do with prohibition?

6. What has given meaning to the phrase "Dare to be a Daniel?"

Dr. Charles Jefferson says, "You must put your body under discipline; you cannot eat just what you please; you must eat the things that are good for you. You cannot neglect any part of your body; if you do, you will be crippled for life. The newspapers reported that four out of every five of the young men of this country who offered themselves to the army during the World War were rejected because they were physically unfit!"

Lesson Prayer: "Give us a higher appreciation of our possible physical powers that we may develop and preserve the health and vigor that will furnish the needed co-operation for a strong mental and religious life capable of the highest service to others."

BOOK REVIEW

"Christianizing Community Life" by Ward Edwards, Methodist Book Concern, is one of a series of textbooks known as college voluntary study courses. It deals specifically with the practical application of social principles of Jesus and the actual tasks they impose on present day Christians.

"Royton Manor," by Mason, F. H. Revell Co., is a novel in which the heroine maintains her Christian ideals in spite of numerous adverse conditions and obstacles.

A proposal to establish a Christian Socialist church in Holland has recently been made. # The Theater

Theda Bara, once-famed movie vampire, is planning to stage a comeback, literally and figuratively, by appearing in the title role of a vaudeville sketch opening at a New York theater soon, it is announced.

Miss Bara, a native of Cincinnati, was once the principal exponent of that type of screen beauty who entangled the stumbling, love-blinded hero in the meshes of her maidenly charms. She was, as a vampire, at the peak of her profession and even went so far as to do a "Romeo and Juliet" picture.

She was succeeded as a movie spider by Louise Glaum, but the Productions, capitalized for $200,000 with Mrs. McPherson's name heading the list of directors.

The Xenia Little Theater Guild is getting under way for its second season by inaugurating a membership campaign, plans for which will be announced soon. Miss Allegra Hawes will be in charge of the drive by which the Guild hopes to extend its influence to an even larger circle this year. The membership fee, of course, will include admissions to the Guild's program of plays, which will be sufficient compensation for the members.

Lillian Gish, just home from Europe, is hurrying to Hollywood in the belief that talkies will have opened up a new field for her talents.

vogue for sirens passed and both passed from the public attention. "My style of vamping is not in vogue on the screen now," says Miss Bara, "so I am returning to the stage." She is the wife of Charles J. Brabin, the screen director. Miss Bara's old fans wish her success in her attempted comeback.

Anita Loos, who, with her husband, John Emerson, was quite a figure around the Hollywood studios before she became internationally prominent through her novel, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," has broken into the news dispatches as the exponent of a new fashion.

Miss Loos says tweed pajamas on the "harem-skirt" principle are the smartest things yet for house wear. "I am not a dress reformer," says Anita, "but these pajamas are the most comfortable things for house wear that one could imagine." They are already becoming popular in France and I hope to introduce them to America. I am looking forward to the longer skirt. It will make women look more feminine. Manish women are very amusing and tolerated so long as they do not take themselves too seriously."

Aimee Semple McPherson (now is the time to drop out if you don't care to hear any more about her) has gone into the movie business. The other day this column reported her plans to make talkie pictures of her sermons for use in her outlying Four-Square Gospel Churches. Incorporation papers were placed on file in Sacramento, Calif., Thursday for the Angelus

TO OBSERVE RALLY DAY HERE SUNDAY

Coming at the end of the conventional vacation period and the beginning of the new church year, Rally Day will be observed at the First Lutheran Church, 303 W. Main St., Sunday. The day is generally observed in the United Lutheran Church in America. Either the last Sunday in the church year or the first may be used, depending upon the individual congregations.

The Sunday School of the local Lutheran Church will meet in the church room. This change becomes necessary because of the increased attendance of both primary and junior departments. Members of the Luther League will decorate the church interior in an appropriate manner for the occasion. Sunday School will begin at 9:15 with Carl Mollage, superintendent, in charge.

"The Challenge of Today," will be the subject of the sermon which will be preached by the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold, at the morning worship, 10:30.

Rudolph G. Schulz, Jr., Columbus, executive secretary of the Luther League of Ohio, will be the principal speaker at the young peoples' meeting at six p. m. He has had rich experience in this kind of work, and a very interesting program is anticipated. Miss Halcy Strider, Bellbrook Ave., will be the leader for Sunday night.

PRISON OUTBREAK ENDS WHEN LEADER COMMITTS SUICIDE

Daniels, A. H. Davis, Charley Davis, his brother, and Leo W. Genty.

Desperate ringleaders of the mutinous prisoners butchered guards they held as hostages as officers battled with dynamite, machine guns, rifle barrages and tear bomb attacks in an effort to force the desperate ringleaders from block three.

Approximately 170 prisoners in addition to the ringleaders, were in the cell house, but took no part in the furious battle.

Battling continued all night, following refusal of Warden Crawford to accept demands of the ringleaders that he furnish automobiles for them to make a "free getaway" from the city. The convicts had sent a note to the warden declaring they would kill all of the guards they held as hostages unless their demands were met.

Scenes reminiscent of the World War western front were enacted at the penitentiary throughout the night. Sixty-three National Guardsmen manning two machine guns kept up a constant attack on cell house three; hundreds of other guardsmen, penitentiary guards; police and sheriffs' officers from a dozen Colorado cities poured rifle fire into the doors and windows of the cell house in response to the
